Big News for Many Power Men, Oil Men And Little Men Sullivan Met the Prince

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

THERE IS SOME news important ... of Americans, including ... business is selling electric... to the public.

...ment of the Diesel engine ... rapidly. Engines will ... power, electric or other, on ... or little, that will compete with power companies, as ... and motor trucks now ... with railroads.

When England was in financial ... 100 years ago Macaulay ... what people would say "if ... were to prophesy that in the ... 1930 machines, constructed ... principles yet undiscovered, ... be in every house; that there ... be no highways but railroads, ... moving but by steam," etc.

... little dreamed that the ... machines in every house" would ... telephones carrying the ... across the ocean, lights, ... washing machines, fans and cook ... run by electricity.

And foreseeing an end of stage ... travel, he could not guess ... railroads would come, only ... be dispossessed, in their turn, ... travel through the air and by ... gas engines in automobiles.

• • •

THE DIESEL ENGINE threatens power companies, promises a ... to the air problem and a new better, cheaper automobile engine with an electric ignition. It will give to the distant farmer and the little householder cheap electricity for light and power, with no payment for running power lines long distances.

Diesel engines, while waiting for something better to be invented, will take passengers through the air to Europe or across the continent for $25 each or less. They may gladden the heart of the oil industry, creating such a market for oil as will make the present gasoline market seem trivial.

Long ago, when the thoughtless were putting glass on the roads to puncture the first automobile tires, they were urged by this writer to refrain, on the ground that some day cheap automobiles made by the millions every year would be used by men going to their work.

That writing was used as evidence in court to establish the value of Ford Company stock as of 1913 for income tax purposes. This observer wishes to prophesy now improved engines will make human beings independent of power companies.

THE PRINCE OF WALES' entourage in South America is amazed to find Montevideo more interested in the Argentine prize fighter Suarez than in the prince and his brother. Huge crowds followed the fighter: only a few showed interest in the princes.

Nine Montevideo newspapers devoted 10 pages to the fighter; only two and a half to British royalty. Only two newspapers put the princes on the front page and two of them never mentioned the prince, one of the two giving three full pages to the fighter.

When the princes' grandfather, later King Edward, then Prince of Wales, met our John L. Sullivan in London at a boxing exhibition, this writer, present, observed no doubt in Sullivan's mind as to which was the great man.

"I hear you have been in America," said Sullivan to the prince. "If you ever come again, you want to ask for me."

When introduced to the prince, Sullivan, extending a big hand, said affably: "Pleased to meet you; ... heard of you."

That was his formula when meet-

HYMIE MARTIN GOES ON TRIAL IN POTTER CASE

Selection of Jurors Proceeds After Motion To Quash Indictment Loses.

EVIDENCE CIRCUMSTANTIAL

Land Frauds and Underworld Form Mystery Background as Hearing Opens.

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., March 23—The state's attempt to send "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin to the electric chair on a charge of murdering former Councilman William E. Potter opened in court here today with a motion by one of Martin's attorneys to quash the indictment on the grounds that the defendant belongs in the custody of Pennsylvania courts. Common Pleas Judge Walter McMahon overruled the motion, and the examination of jurors was started. The claim of Martin's attorney that he was in court here illegally was based on the indictments of his removal here from Pittsburgh where he was arrested several weeks ago.

Martin was rushed out of a Pittsburgh courtroom and brought to Cleveland after the judge who had ruled against a writ of habeas corpus, but the judge's decision had not been signed.

In passing on the motion to quash the indictment, Judge McMahon said the court here is not concerned with what happened in Pittsburgh. "I am only concerned with the sufficiency of the indictment."

Leander J. Hostetter, real estate man, was the first juror to be tentatively seated.

Basis of State's Case

Prosecutor Ray T. Miller's questioning of the prospective jurors showed that the state's case apparently is based on circumstantial evidence. "Would the fact that there were no eye witnesses to the slaying influence your judgment?" he asked them.

Numerous prospective jurors were excused by Judge MaMahon when they said they had formed opinions in the case or were opposed to capital punishment. Several others were tentatively seated as the questioning by the attorneys proceeded.

The trial will be a chain of circumstantial evidence pitted against the alibi of Martin and his sweetheart with the state hoping to uncover the real reason why Potter was lured to an East Side apartment the evening of Feb. 3, slugged over the head and shot to death.

No motive has been definitely fixed for the slaying, but it was believed by investigators to have been rooted in the city land scandals of 1928 or some racket. Potter, three times acquitted of complicity in land purchases in which the city was defrauded of $33,250, was slain on the eve of a scheduled trial for perjury.

No Direct Evidence

Neither has Martin been directly connected with the killing. He has been identified as the "M. J. Markus" who rented the suite where Potter met death, and by the story of his sweetheart, Mrs. Mary Outland Woodfield, was in Cleveland the night of the killing. But Mrs. Woodfield, better known as "Akron Mary" says they left Cleveland about 7 p. m. and spent the night in an Akron hotel. State witnesses have variously fixed the time when the shots were heard as between 8 p. m. and 9:20. The chief fight is expected over this alibi.

Last minute developments were reports that the state might not be able to prove that the revolver found near the murder apartment was the one used in the killing and a defense elaboration on Martin's alibi.

Important Testimony

Attorney Edward S. Sheck and Anthony J. Bianchi of Akron said "Akron Mary" told them their whereabouts in Akron probably could be described by a gasoline station attendant at Main and Furnace streets, employes of a restaurant where they ate and acquaintances at two alleged speakeasies, one on West Market street and the other on Royal Oak road.

DEATH MARKS START OF POLAR SUBMARINE

Quartermaster Loses Life as Wilkins' Ship Goes to Christening.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 23—Willard I. Grimmer, quartermaster of Sir Hubert Wilkins' polar submarine Nautilus, was lost overboard yesterday in the outer harbor as the craft was on the way to the Brooklyn navy yard for christening tomorrow. He was married three weeks ago.

Report of the tragedy by Commander Sloan Danenhower, skipper of the craft, was merely that Grimmer had been lost, that a thorough search had been made. Members of the crew said the cable or deck rail broke under his weight and that he fell into the sea from the after deck. The cable was intact when the submarine was being berthed last night.

Grimmer, 27 years old, was formerly a radio operator in the navy. Until his engagement as quartermaster for the projected polar expedition, he sold insurance. His widowed bride is the former Miss Mary Fountain of Philadelphia.

Navy tugs, police launches and navy airplanes joined in search for Grimmer after radio calls were sent from the submarine. The craft was being towed by a tug when the quartermaster was lost. Sir Hubert was not aboard.

The submarine, formerly the O-12 of the navy, was recently reconditioned for the polar under-ice trip at Camden, N. J.

The polar trip will be made in July.

Jean Jules Verne, grandson of the French author of "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," was in the small welcoming party.

He formally will christen the vessell tomorrow at Brooklyn navy yard.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, March 23—Whether or not there will be a dissolution of the recent injunction secured against the New York Central railroad by the city of Bucyrus in an effort to prevent the company from moving its repair shops from Bucyrus to Collinwood, near Cleveland, is expected to be determined this afternoon when Judge C. U. Ahl of common pleas court will hear arguments on the motion.

Injunction proceedings were brought against the company by Solicitor Charles F. Schaber upon instruction of the city council when it was leraned that the company planned to move it's shops in violation to the terms of the deed given to the railroad by the city 50 years ago.

A temporary injunction was issued at once by Judge Ahl but was lifted temporarily by him when officials asked permission to close the shops until April 6 or for the same period of time that other shops on the various divisions will be closed.

SEEK SOLUTION TO ECONOMIC PROBLEM

Extra Session of Congress Urged in Action at Conference in Washington.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 23—A program designed to force an extra session of congress to deal with economic distress was adopted today at a conference of representatives of various reform organizations, peace societies and the national socialist party.

Delegates to the conference, headed by Norman Thomas, former Socialist candidate for President, immediately began a series of conferences with political leaders demanding the extra session.

They called first on Senate Republican Leader Watson. He told them he did not believe the situation had reached a point where an extra session was necessary.

Watson promised, however, to talk the situation over with President Hoover on his return from his Caribbean cruise.

The program adopted by the conference provided also for appeals to Speaker Longworth of the house and the chairman of the national committees of the two major political parties.

He told the Michigan commissioner, however, that a bill onw before the state legislature would double the prices of licenses on Ohio pleasure cars and increase prices on truck and commercial car tags by 20 per cent, making Ohio prices equal to or greater than in Michigan.

ZEP EMPLOYE INDICTED BY JURY AT AKRON

COMMUNISTS LINE UP

Assert Man's Arrest Is Part of Plan To Discredit Party.

By The Associated Press.

AKRON, O., March 23 Paul F. Kassay 37, Goodyear Zeppelin employe who is alleged to have made remarks which showed he intended to commit sabotage against the giant navy Zeppelin "Akron," was indicted by the Summit county grand jury today on a charge of violation of the state syndicalism law. Although denying he was a member of their party, Communists rallied today to the defense of Kassay.

Text of Indictment

The indictment states that Kassay "openly, wilfully and deliberately" justified by word of mouth an attempt to commit sabotage to wit, that on or about March 10, he said to divers persons that he was attempting to effect malicious injury and destruction to the airship Akron, the property of the United States, within the walls of the dock of the Goodyear Zeppelin corporation.

"The word so spoken of the said attempt to commit sabotage was spoken with intent to exemplify, spread, or advocate the propriety of the doctrine of criminal syndicalism."

The indictment was returned after Assistant County Prosecutors George Hargreaves and Michael Fanelly and O. G. Hall, representative of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, presented the evidence against Kassay.

Miss Jennie Coover of Cleveland, district organizer of the international labor defense committee, said she would come here today to post a $40,000 property security to obtain Kassay's release under $20,000 bond. Kassay's arrest, she said, was a "well-organized plan to discredit the Communist party."

Demonstrations will be held in Cleveland, Youngstown, Toledo, Akron and other Ohio cities to "arouse sympathy in behalf of Kassay," Miss Cooper said.

Kassay's release also was sought on habeas corpus proceedings today by Miss Yetta Land, attorney for the international labor defense committee. She likewise termed the charges a "frame-up."

UNCOVER CLUE IN 2-YEAR-OLD MURDER

Police Seek To Unravel Slaying in 1929 of Wheelersburg, O., Student.

By The Associated Press

PORTSMOUTH, O., March 23—A new clue was followed today as police sought to unravel the mystery surrounding the slaying of William S. Wright, 18-year-old Wheelersburg High school student, on April 30, 1929.

From Katherine Scott, 17, of Beckley, W. Va., authorities hoped to obtain information that would lead to the identity of the youth's murderer. The girl was taken into custody as a material witness following statements of officers that she was with Wright the night he was slain.

Information in the hands of police today was that the youth was fatally shot by a man who appeared out of the darkness while the automobile was parked near the farm of Ernest Marsh near Wheelersburg.

Miss Scott has denied any knowledge of the circumstances of Wright's murder, although authorities said that a youth named Woodrow Hosey of Wheelersburg, had quoted the girl as saying she was with Wright the night he was shot to death.

Vice-Chancellor Defends Proposed Customs Union Treaty with Germany.

ASKS NATIONS TO JOIN

Projected Plan Would Abolish Barriers Between Various Countries.

By The Associated Press

VIENNA, March 23—Austria today answered protests against her proposed customs union with Germany with an invitation to other European countries to join them in an abolition of customs barriers.

A formal protest by diplomatic representatives of France, Italy and Czechoslovakia drew from Dr. Johann Schober, foreign minister and vice chancellor, the word that Germany and Austria had no intention of concludnig any treaty which excluded the other power.

On the contrary, he said, both have invited any other European state—all European states—to join the projected customs union, so as gradually to extend it to embrace all European countries.

Defends Proposal

He declared also that Austria felt more encouraged to embark on the customs arrangement with Germany since she was conscious that the plan had the approval both of Aristide Briand, French foreign minister and author of an ambitious Pan-European scheme, and of the League of Nations.

The protest of the three countries against the customs union project, which they based upon an allegation that the union would impair and compromise Austria's pledged independence, aroused considerable

STYLES COLORFUL

Varied Hues Irresistible This Year

IF you are one of the devotees who has said "The smartest women always stick to black," you are due to reverse your opinion this year, for the craftiness of fashion has introduced colors in such subtle, such fascinating ways, they are irresistible.

Even those who have taken pride in being aloofly smart in their sophisticated black, and who smiled in superior manner at the fashion reports of color-rampant, have been completely won over when they have seen the effect of the daring yet altogether harmonious effects.

It's All in the Style

It is all in the way it is being done. For example, those who transform the printed fabric into the finished costume have used more ingenuity than ever before. They have built the prints into the very styling of the garment itself, in such manner that everyone can wear them. Instead of just printed frocks this year, we have printed frocks for youth's slenderness, printed frocks for sophisticates, printed frocks for the mature, and they are designed in just the spirit the wearer requires.

Formerly, if a matron of too-generous proportions took to prints at all, she was told to stick to small, inconspicuous designs on dark grounds she was warned to avoid large patterns and sharp color contrasts. Yet both are disregarded in prints for her frocks today. the print is persuaded to create an illusion of slenderness by the way the model itself is designed, by its combination with a plain material, by the way it is cut to carry the eye up and down in following the pattern. And this is only one example of the many tricks to which fashion has resorted in making prints the darling of the mode.

Designs Fit in the Mode

It is hardly necessary to say that plaids, checks and stripes are the favorites, in entire costumes or in blouses, scarfs, vestees. The Paisley fashion spread rapidly but most women seem to prefer it in small doses, such as a blouse or a scarf. There are the usual numbers of floral and new all-over designs, one of the newest notes being the wide-spaced patterns which are much easier for the average figure to wear, becomingly. Fashion still divides prints into small designs on dark grounds for daytime and the more exotic patterns and colors for afternoon and evening.

The rage for color contrast has affected printed silks and they are out this year in two and three colors, the more the merrier and smarter. This doesn't imply that black-and-white, navy-and-white, or brown-and-white are not well represented or that they will not be worn by some of the smartest.

Hemorrhoids
How to End Painful Piles Without Salves or Cutting

Itching, bleeding, protruding piles are caused by bad circulation of the blood in the affected parts. The parts become weak, flabby, almost dead. Only an internal remedy can remove the cause — that's why salves, suppositories and cutting fail. Dr. Leonhardt's prescription HEM-ROID, succeeds because it removes congestion, restores circulation, heals and strengthens the diseased parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record of quickly ending even piles of long standing, that Henney & Cooper says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your pile agony or money back. —Adv.

If Your Ears Ring With Head Noises

If you have catarrhal deafness or head noises go to Henney & Cooper or your druggist and get 1 oz. of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take a tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.—Adv.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

CHAPTER 19

Waye's Life "Insured"

"S... me?" replied Dr. ..., and he laughed. "I'll ... guarantee you against ... dear sir, if you are nerv... I'm perfectly certain. ... Charters and Dr. Mac... like to be sure that I'd ... reach the age that you will." ... you, doctor. You reas... completely . . . Do you ... actually got into my ... I might be found dead ... morning. Silly of me, ..." and John Waye smiled ... at Mr. James and Dr. ... I feel perfectly certain. ... I shan't die in my sleep, ... taken suddenly ill and die ... and Mr. Waye lit another ...

... all, Studley, thanks," said ... Charters, and winked heavily ... colleague, as one sane man ... veys to another acknowl... of their mutual apprecia... a difficult situation.

... puzzled, Dr. Studley ...

... Simon," observed John ... as the outer door was shut. ... think I shall be found dead ... and I don't think I shall disappear—to the bewilderment of my solicitor and banker, not to mention Sir Bernard Matthieson—and I don't fancy you'll give me up to justice."

"Look here, my clever friend," said the doctor, his voice quiet and menacing, "supposing that, on the one hand, your health remains good here and, on the other hand, the police don't tear you from us, exactly how long do you propose to give us the pleasure of your company?"

"Well," considered Mr. Waye, "I couldn't tell you anything definite beyond this—I shall most certainly be with you, my dear doctor, until this poor fellow is hanged for the murder of Mr. Theophius Webb of Witherby End....And now that the police have got him, I feel quite certain that he will be hanged, for I left on the spot evidence confirmatory of what I wrote, and most incriminating . . . Yes, I shall certainly be with you until he's hanged."

And with a nod and a smile, Mr. Waye stolled away into the grounds in search of Marjorie Lauderdell, whom he had begged to meet him in "The Ruins," the beautiful remains of the ancient Abbey church, once the chapel of the monastery.

Dr. Charters and the confidential members of his competent staff looked at each other in a discomfort bordering upon consternation.

"And phwat d'ye know about that?" inquired the matron.

"Looks to me like he gets away with it," answered Nurse Jones.

"So long as he gets away from here...' said Dr. Charters.

"But did you ever, in all your young lives, ever hear of such wickedness?" ...

"Bump him off, I say," interrupted Mr. James.

"There are occasions when the administration of your one and only panacea is not indicated . . .

"Your observations are apt to be monotonous, Jimmy," continued the doctor wearily. "Do you suppose that man will remain—er, unbumped—for one minute after circumstances render him—er—bumpable? Be patient, my boy, and you shall get him."

"If you don't wait till he gets us," grumbled Mr. James.

"Well you leave it to me. He can't, and won't, do a thing until this other guy is hanged, or the whole affair blows over and is forgotten. Then he'll want to make his getaway. . . . And when that time comes perhaps we'll start something bad for the health of Mr. Mysterious Waye."

"We certainly don't want him visiting here again," observed Dr. MacAdoo. "If he were taken ill here, later on, and stayed with us for good—under the old yew tree—we'd feel safer."

"True enough," agreed Dr. Charters. "But I'd feel safer if he left us, having said good-by to his solicitor and banker and Sir Bernard Matthieson, and Jimmy followed him."

The doctor gazed reflectively at the blotting-pad that he tapped with his pencil.

"Well," he said, rising, "that's that for the present," and with a complete change of voice and manner added, "let us now resume our interrupted professional duties, my dear colleagues."

As the doctor's dear colleagues departed he called one of them back.

"Er—one moment, MacAdoo," he said. "I want a word with you about one of the patients — that Miss Lauerdell."

Closing the dors, Dr. MacAdoo returned and seated himself opposite to his chief.

"Yes," he said softly. "The poor girl is getting worse, doctor?"

Dr. Charters eyed his dear colleague with a probing and searching scrutiny, beneath which MacAdoo grew obviously uncomfortable.

"Getting worse, doctor?" he said again, suggestively.

"No," replied Dr. Charters. "Better."

"Getting better?"

"Steadily improving. Quickly getting better . . . and better."

Dr. McAdoo smiled, as one to whom a nod is as good as a wink.

"Ah! You want my help, eh, doctor? . . . One of my private, particular, and peculiar 'drugs,' eh?"

"No, I think not, my dear Manoel. I fancy I can cure my patient myself, without any help whatsoever . . . In fact, under my treatment, she is making enormous strides."

"Getting better?" asked Dr. MacAdoo in some bewilderment.

"Fast. And she's going to get well."

"Going to get well?"

"Sure. So make no mistake about it."

"Why this change in your plans, doctor? I mean in the medical history—the, er, the future medical history—of this case?"

"Too risky," was the curt reply. "Simply because this man Waye knows as much about it as we do, and hasn't shown his hand. He goes to you with hints, and shows that he knows the price, but he hasn't come to me with any talk of a rakeoff for himself....I don't like it, I tell you. He's got me guessing, and I'm worried," and again the doctor sat in deep and anxious thought.

"Anyway,:" he continued, "this Lauderdell business is off, and the girl's going to get better."

"And you're going to let 10,000 pounds slip?"

"I am," replied the doctor with decision.

"And you're going to lose that half-share we joked about," he added. "Nothing whatever is going to happen to Marjorie Lauderdell..."

"Not just yet...Not while Mr. Remarkably Mysterious Waye is in the house," he continued—after both doors had closed behind the bewildered and distrustful Dr. MacAdoo.

His duties for the day accomplished, Mr. James, a scowl upon his brow, and the corners of his slitlike mouth down-drawn, slouched, without knocking, into Dr. MacAdoo's siting-room, and without salutation, flung himself down in that gentleman's arm-chair

Like most other people, Dr. MacAdoo was curiously uncomfortable when alone with Mr. James.

"Something troubling you, Jimmy?" he inquired nervously, breaking the sour silence.

"Huh! There'll be something troubling the lot of us before long—and that's the police, unless the old man watches out. . . . Why in blazes can't he tell this Waye guy where he gets off? Why doesn't he either do him in or kick him out?"

"We-ll he's given us plenty of good reasons for doing neither, hasn't he?" urged Rr. MacAdoo.

"Yeah. Too many . . . and it's not like him to take any guy's bluff. He's got me guessing.

"Seems to me the boss is weakening," he added thoughtfully, as deftly he rolled a cigaret with his left hand, while his right hand remained behind his back, a favorite attitude with Mr. James—and one which always troubled Dr. MacAdoo, whose left hand liked to know what Mr. James' right hand was doing.

"I'll say the boss is weakening, Jimmy," he agreed. "Don't you say I said so, but I've come to the conclusion that the boss is doing two things. He's playing his own game and he's weakening too."

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

YESTERDAY was Sunday, and bright and bammy, and I got out of bed and let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth, and got into my short britches and went downstairs and got the pail and milked the dummed brutes and came in and fed my face and got washed by my ant within an inch of my life, and then the worst of the day was over.

My unkle got a job in an ice cream factory yesterday, and I found out that they make ice cream all winter. Rich people like to set around a fire and eat ice cream. I don't blame them. He would of had a good job all summer only he put salt instead of sugar in a lot of ice cream and that made it hard to freeze, and when it was friz and they were going to mix the flavor in it the boss took a taste of it, and he called my unkle a name that my unkle said no man would take, so he had to paist my unkle on the nose as well as call him the name, and I think maybe he gave my unkle a raise as he was leaving, because my unkle walks kinda lame. He says there can't no one munky with him and get away with it, and he will get even with the fella yet. He said if he was rich he would buy the ice cream factory out and fire the man.

He said he wohld get another job tomorrow, and my mother said he probably would, and another one Tuesday, which is tomorrow and another one the next day and the next and the next. She said she would be glad if some day he would lose one less job than he gets. He said she didn't understand him; he wants to get a job with a future to it, and she said that's the kind of a job she wants him to get. She said she is tired of hearing that he has got a job at the same time she hears that he has lost it

On the way to Sunday school we met Nibs with a beef bladder he got at the slaughter house, and when we were going past Knollson's they all drove out of their front gate, so we went in on the lawn where their gas well is at, and where a pipe sticks up that they light at night sometimes, and we put the bladder on the end of the pipe and got it full of gas, and Nibs put it under his arm and squoze it and hung onto the hole and I lit the gas when it came out, and all at once it busted and set his coat on fire and burnt his wrist. He took his coat off and we put it out, and we aren't going to play with gas any more.

Today was Monday and it began to rain just after I woke up, and had stopped raining when I got outside, and when I opened the barn door both cows were loose and came charging out and knocked me down in the mud and went to the pasture, so I knowed the Lost Bag of Tripe had been there. When I got them ohme and milked I was almost late for school, and the Lost Bag of Tripe was looking so happy and so innocent that I couldn't get my lessons. I had to stay in, so I didn't catch him. I will.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Mary Tells "Auntie" Madge of Noel's Trip with His Father.

I SMILED at my husband's beautiful young niece as she asked me if I objected to committing myself upon the query she had made me concerning the actions of her fiance and his father.

"I'd be glad to 'commit' myself if I knew the answers," I said, smiling at her. "On one point I can be sure, Noel is not 'nutty.' He is one of the sanest young men I know."

"Yea—ah," Mary drawled, in one of the most atrocious mannerisms I know, and exclaimed in penitence a moment later.

"I'm terribly sorry, Auntie Madge," she said. "I shouldn't have said that to you. But if you think Noel is so sane, just take a slant at this."

She moved to her dressing-table and picked from the top of it a crumpled letter, evidently flung there at the same time she was distributing her shoes, with swift thrusts, to different resting places around the room. It held, I saw, a special delivery stamp, and I knew that it must be the one which Jerry Ticer had brought when he brought Marion the one from Ronald, and had bantered the girls about their 'fellers spendin' all their money for special delivery stamps."

Mary Explodes

Two girls, each with a "sweetie"—another atrocious word which I loathe—and each receiving a special delivery letter from the current man of her heart at the same moment! To Marion it had brought the prospect of another gala time such as she had been enjoying all summer. To Mary the caustic reflection that her fiance was "nutty," palpably based upon some mention in his letter of the young woman whom Mary had described in such crass but effective terms a few minutes before.

With swift, nervous fingers Mary smoothed the crumpled letter and proffered it to me. But I put my hands behind my back and looked at her steadily.

"You are too angry now to show that letter to me or to anyone," I told her gravely. "Tell me whatever you wish about it, but do not show it to me nor quote it until you are calmer."

She flushed, but her eyes did not flinch from mine. Dickly always says that "Mary stands up to her lickings."

"I suppose I am a little beast," she said as impersonally as if she were analyzing the characteristics of someone in whom she had not the slightest interest. "But you'd be angry, too, if you were working your head off this hot summer, going into that awful city two days a week while Uncle Dicky was driving around the country in Papa's big car with Papa's big chauffeur and Papa's noble self, to say nothing of a plump widow and her skinny daughter."

I bit my lips to keep back a smile at the vision her words evoked. But Mary detected my ruse and greeeted it with a giggle.

"Yes, that is funny, to think of Uncle Dicky enjoying the society of either a plump widow or a skinny daughter. But it's the picture my young fiance is painting for me. And I suppose because he tells me on every other line how much he misses me; that I'll revel in his descriptions of the scenery inside and outside the limousine and consider it a real chatty letter. Well! it's chatty all right, but I don't care for that sort of small talk, thank you."

"Is she anyone you have known long?" I asked.

"As long as I've been going down to the Veritzen organization offices," Mary replied, and I realized that there was some "ancient grudge" between her and this girl she had so graphically described.

"You see," she explained, "she's the daughter of a man who used to be a side kick of old Phil's—I know that our very best circles do not refer to their future father-in-laws—fathers-in-law—have it your own way—so flippantly, but I'm a natural low brow, anyway. The aforesaid side-kick up and died a few years ago, leaving—item—"—she began to check from her fingers, "item—several million cash, item, one widow anywhere from one hundred and seventy to two hundred pounds—wasn't I the chivalrous kidder to refer to her as 'plump'?—item, one skinny daughter, whom I described at full length a few minutes ago—don't forget I'm going to memorize your translation of my spiel—item, one friend loyal and faithful to memory and friendship's fond remembrance—all that stuff, you know—bound up in the person of the great and illustrious Philip Veritzen, idol of Broadway, and with royal blood in his veins, although he isn't bragging about it over here."

A Titian Preference

There was a note in her voice when she spoke of her patron and future father-in-law, which if it held no venom, had no kindly feeling either. I could not blame her, for she knew as well as I that only my insistence had included her in that Christmas reconciliation of the Veritzens, father and son, under the roof of the farmhouse.

"The widow's too fat for old Phil—he likes a woman to be svelte and tall, preferably. I think with Titian hair—" she glanced slyly at me. "Otherwise he might be consoling himself now for the awful turn-down you gave him."

"Mary!" I exclaimed sternly. "this has gone far enough. What do you mean by talking so outrageously?"

A'S NOT UP TO FORM IN SPRING GAMES

MACK CONCERNED AT FAILURE OF CLUB IN EXHIBITION STARTS

Veteran Infield Showing Signs of Wear; Aid for Hurlers Needed.

By The Associated Press.

FORT MYERS, Fla. March 23—The development of the Philadelphia Athletics in their spring training camp has left something to be desired to judge from performances, even though nothing has occurred serious enough to dislodge the world's champions as favorites in the forthcoming pennant race.

Although there is no payoff on the results of exhibition games the defeat of the A's in three out of four games with their world's series rivals, the St. Louis Cardinals, did not prove enjoyable to Connie Mack and his associates

With the start of the season only about three weeks off, Mack's principal concerns are these:

Three Concerns

(1) The ability of the club's veteran infield to withstand the wear and tear of another full campaign effectively.

(2) The ability of Grove and Earnshaw again to shoulder the pitching burden to the extent of winning 50 games between them, besides saving a flock of others.

(3) The annual task of signing Al Simmons, the club's premier punch, complicated by reports that the famous outfielder intends to demand a $100,000 three year contract.

Only the run of the season will furnish the answer to the first item, Mack has several promising youngsters for infield replacements if Dykes, Boley and Bishop fail to meet expectations or suffer mishaps. These reserves, however, are still short of big league requirements in experience. The A's gained a third sacker but lost their best utility man when Dykes was assigned to regular work.

In seeking support for the twin hurling aces, the A's have uncovered two unusually promising recruits in Hank McDonald, a California boy, and Lew Krausen an 18-year-old product of Philadelphia suburban diamonds. McDonald has been the more impressive in exhibition games.

If Mack can get winning results from one of these youths this year, he will be well fixed, for he counts on consistent work from Rube Walberg, Leroy Mahaffey, Eddie Rommel and Bill Shores in support of Grove and Earnshaw.

Mack, when the subject was brought up, told the Associated Press he did not classify Simmons as a holdout, having agreed with the outfielder to postpone final discussion of salary terms until they meet in Philadelphia before the season opens. Simmons did not sign until just before the opening game a year ago. If his demands are as high as they have been reported, it may take another last-minute confab to get Al into the starting lineup. The best bet, however, is that he will be in there.

One athletic exhibition, featuring wrestling, attracted more customers at Amarillo, Tex., than three grand opera programs.

MT. VERNON QUINTET BEATS MARION FIVE

Shovel Y-Indus Loses with Three of First Team Out of Lineup.

Playing without the services of a majority of the first-string players the Shovel Y-Indus basketball team was defeated Saturday night on the Mt. Vernon Y. M. C. A court 44 to 41. Bill Roush, Bill Keller and Walter Lockwood were all missing from the lineup of the Marion club.

Even with the three first stringers absent the Y-Indus would probably have won the game had not Chuck Osterholt been ejected from the game via the four foul route in the fourth period. Until Osterholt left the game the Marion five held a slim advantage most of the time

The score at the half way point was 18-17 for Mt. Vernon but the Y-Indus led at the third period 29 to 24. A succession of successful long shots late in the game turned victory into defeat for the locals.

Captain Bud Cram led the Marion quintet in scoring with 13 points.

TRACK RECORD SET AS MIKE HALL WINS AGUA CALIENTE RACE

Sun Beau, 4-5 Favorite in World's Richest Stake, Fails To Place.

By The Associated Press

AGUA CALIENTE Mexico, March 23 Mike Hall a thoroughbred which rose from the ranks of the platers, today at the age of seven was the second Agua Caliente handicap champion, giving his owner Robert M Eastman the world's richest stake of $100,000

The big bay son of Hourless virtually came from retirement to win the second renewal of the classic, which started in 1917 as the Coffroth handicap, to double his total earnings in six years of turf activities.

Mike Hall staged a gallant drive yesterday to win from the Choctaw of the Audley farm stable of Miami, Fla., by a neck, after leaving the barrier in the mile and a quarter test the last of the ten starters Plucky Play from the Northway stable of San Jose, Calif., was third.

The fast time of two minutes three seconds, a new track record, by one-fifth of a second, was too furious a pace for Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Beau, odds-on favorite.

While his running mate, Hal P. Headley's Pigeon Hole, set a burning pace for the field, Mike Hall moved along wisely in the ruck, with Steve O'Donnell in the boot

Caught in the pack on the first stretch, Sun Beau was forced to check his pace frequently and Jockey Frank Coltiletti was never able to get him in line for a good run until his strength was spent.

Mike Hall hit the half distance in the ninth place, but then moved rapidly to the front, passing The Choctaw in the last sixteenth of a mile

Mike Hall paid $20.80, $6 and $4.20 on $2 pari-mutuel tickets. The Choctaw was good for $6.60 to place and $4 to show, while Plucky Play paid $14.20 for third.

"PODGE" SMITH--STANFORD TRACK CAPTAIN AND A STAR HURDLER!
LORD BURGHLEY.. BRITAIN'S BEST TIMBER TOPPER WHO IS GETTING READY FOR A BIG YEAR!
BURNLEY/B 3-23

HURDLING, like hem-stitching or hitch-hiking, is an art and a joy unto itself, with all the fine points and preciseness of the one and most of the ups and downs of the other. There are those who will tell you that the boys who take it easy down the clear and beaten track are a bunch of sissies, always asking somebody to cut up their meat for them. Give them, they shout, the he-men, the hurdle-men, who don't just run, but who jump over things; who mingle ground-speed with high-flying and send sensitive steeple-chasing nags off to the privacy of their stables to sulk and bite their hoofs.

Among these fence-vaulting young gentlemen, Percy Beard stands hat and collar above them all. And, while he may send his collar to the laundry, somebody will have to do tall running before he tips his hat to any of them, southern gentleman that he is, suh-Percy was the Great Big Man from the south in so far as hurdling was concerned and now he's the top timber topper of them all.

Track fans had been hearing considerable about the Auburn College hope for some time, and it was more or less a certainty that he would do something of an interesting nature. But nobody expected Percy to equal the world's record for the 70-yard high hurdle endeavor in two successive heats and then turn right around and break it all to pieces as well. It was at New York's Madison Square Garden, in the A. A. U. meet, that Percy tore down the previous mark and set a brand new one of 8 5-10 seconds for the rest of the hurdling fraternity to run and jump at. The Southerner's time was 1-10 second faster than the event had ever been tick-tocked before.

And, as may be reasoned from what happened, Percy didn't set the new record in slip-shod fashion. His stride, his unerring judgment, his high hurdling, was as precise as Einstein's arithmetic book and as pleasing to the eye as the rich uncle's obituary notice.

But, withal, Auburn's Beard isn't the only one that has grown into considerable importanec. There's the titled Englishman, for instance, Lord David Burghley, who set a new British record for the 440-yard low hurdles. Lord David began workouts some time ago for the annual British games to be held May 26 at Stamford Bridge Stadium, and is declared to be in swell fettle.

Coming back to the United States, however, there's a young fellow called Roger "Podge" Smith, at Stanford University, who is undoubtedly the greatest hurdler that institute has ever seen. Smith, if not Stanford's star track man, is one of the greatest hurdlers in the business. Between jumping fences he finds time to discharge his duties as captain of the formidable contigent of track specialists gathered together at dear old Stanford for forthcoming attacks on a few records.

New Cage Champions Win State Honors First Time

By United Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 23—Two new state champions, neither of which had won the honor before, had been entered in the record books of the Ohio High School Athletic association today as the result of the state high school basketball tournament.

Portsmouth high, the first Ohio river school to win the championship since 1914, held the class A title after an uphill fight which was climaxed by its brilliant 20 to 19 victory over McKinley High of Canton. In its other tournament games, Portsmouth had beaten Toledo Waite, 30 to 21, and Akron West, 16 to 15.

The class B crown was awarded to Youngstown Fitch High school after an equally hard earned victory over Lancaster St. Mary's, last year's champion, by a 26 to 24 score. It likewise was the first state title for Fitch. In the earlier rounds of the state tournament, Fitch defeated Stewart, 30 to 22, and McConnelsville, 39 to 18.

Portsmouth led McKinley in the early part of the titular game but began to lose ground in the third period because of the uncanny basket tossing of forward Don Black of McKinley. As the last minutes of the regular playing time ticked away, Portsmouth overcame a four point lead to tie the score at 16.

In the thrilling overtime period, McKinley again took a three point lead. Tod Cropper of Portsmouth scored on a difficult play and, with only seconds to go, forward Moore scored the winning goal. Moore also had won the afternoon contest with Akron West, with his free throw in the last half minute of the game.

The class B final was an exciting affair, requiring two overtime sessions. The score at the end of the first overtime was tied at 24. Lancaster had led throughout most of the regular game.

The state foul shooting contest was won by James G. Dill of Pickerington, who made 44 out of 50 shots from the free throw line. Paul Adams of Beaver was second with 43 out of 50. Pickerington defeated Fred Vestal of Marion in the central district free throw tourney.

Fast Card Lined Up for Steam Shovel Bi-Weekly Mat Show

BY KARL McELROY

The line will form on the left tonight when fans storm the Steam Shovel gym for the heavyweight battle between Allan Eustace and Jim Browning

Listening to the gossip going the rounds among wrestling fans, one is almost compelled to believe that the match was going to be for the heavyweight championship Interest in the match is running the highest in a good many months. Indications are pointing to a sell out.

The match will bring together two of the outstanding heavyweights in this section of the country Both men are giants in their racket and always have been a constant threat to the crown now held by John Pesek.

Marion fans are expecting to see Pesek meet one of the two men in the Marion ring in the near future. Eustace has been promised the bout but if Browning should upset the big scissors man promoters would almost be compelled to give him the crack at the title

The boys will be fighting for this chance to meet the title holder Eustace is expected to enter the ring the favorite with the fans although Browning will have a good many followers who are expected to make lots of noise if their boy fails to come through.

Plenty of action is being forecast for the semi-final engagement between Nick Bozinis and Clyde Robinson. Rough is hardly the proper word to picture the action these two boys turn out.

Tom Temple of Marion will meet Carl Beightner of Marysville in one of the two preliminaries The other will bring together Roy Rhinehart, the Mt. Gilead strongman, and Emery Zahn of Springfield. The first match will start at 8:30 p. m.

Will Hear Long Delayed Suit Against Dempsey

Well, the five-year-old case is still brewing. It will be revived in circuit court here today with all interested parties—Dempsey, Clements, Wills and his manager, Paddy Mullins—in court.

Clement asks damages of $50,000 in the suit which was filed just before Dempsey lost his title to Gene Tunney in Philadelphia.

U. S. Will Seek To Regain Lost Laurels in Tennis

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 23—A three-day international tennis team match, beginning tonight, gives the United States a chance to recapture a few of the laurels which France's three invaders, Jean Borotra, Christian Boussus and Pierre Landry, won in the national indoor championships last week.

The matches will be handled in the same way as the Davis cup matches, which they closely resemble. Four singles encounters and one doubles match make up the program. The American team which faces the Frenchmen is composed of Frank Shields, second ranking American player, Berkeley Bell, conqueror of Shields, and runner up to Borotra in the indoor singles championship, Johnny Van Ryn and George Lott.

Stanford university, Cal., co-eds are playing baseball for the first time in five years this spring.

LOUGHRAN WILL FACE FINAL OBSTACLE TO BOUT WITH SHARKEY

Clashes with Tuffy Griffiths Friday in Fistic Feature of Week.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 23—One big hurdle stands between Tommy Loughran and a second shot at Jack Sharkey and the ringwise Philadelphian will try to clear it this week.

Tommy, whose exploits have furnished most of the excitement of the current indoor season, battles Gerald Ambrose Griffiths, Sioux City, Ia., heavyweight, in the 10-round feature bout in the Chicago stadium Friday night. It will be an annoying left hand against a devastating right.

At New York, Fidel La Barba, Los Angeles featherweight, tackles one of the toughest 126-pounders of them all, Kid Francis of Italy, in the top 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Tonight at Philadelphia, Tony Canzoneri, of New York, holder of the lightweight championship, trades punches with Tommy Grogan, of Omaha, Neb., but the title will not be at stake

Tod Morgan, of Los Angeles, former junior lightweight champion, takes on Goldie Hess of Redondo Beach, Cal., in the windup of a Los Angeles show tomorrow night.

Chicago's Gangster Massacre — Still a Puzzle

Slaughter of Seven in Garage One of Most Ghastly Events in Crime War.

EDITOR NOTE: Police files in various cities bulge with affidavits, evidence and statements on unsolved murder mysterious. The slayers never have been convicted. Associated Press writers have gathered details of the most puzzling cases. This is the first of a series of six stories.

* * *

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO—The murder of Al Lingle one June afternoon last year frustrated a plan to trap the chief figure in the St. Valentine's day massacre of seven gangsters, now a two-year-old mystery.

The four killers were identified by eye-witnesses, but they never have been convicted. Yet every few months there bobs up a new theory as to why the sensational drama was enacted, each described as the "inside story."

An episode in a war for control of the dyeing and cleaning business was one theory. Another was that a wealthy man, frantic from kidnaping threats, instigated it.

The police were accused, and the assigned motive was revenge upon a gang that had failed to pay promised protection money. A fourth was that Detroit liquor runners wiped out the mob for hi-jacking rum trucks

Burke's Assignment

"Fred Burke, identified as one of the North Clark street garage killers, was to visit an apartment over a drug store on the South side the afternoon Lingle was killed," said John Stegs, detective chief at the time of both murders.

"We had shadowed the place several days. Lingle was slain early on the afternoon of June 9. Burke was expected about 2:30 o'clock. The Lingle news spread rapidly and the hoodlums ran over each other getting out.

"The town was hot. Burke never appeared. But just to show you how close we were—the 'finger' who tipped us off was 'rubbed out' in the drug store building a few days later."

Stege said there were 10 or 12 persons in the conspiracy. But for a traffic delay, Moran, the chief and two others of the mob would have been in the garage when the killers called.

One of Combination

Stege believes the septuple homicide was a sequel to the murders of Tony Lombardo and Pasqualino Lolardo, Sicilian society chiefs, and associates of Al Capone.

The boldness and ruthless precision of the garage killing gave it startling distinctiveness. A call that a truck of liquor was to be sold assembled the Moranites at the garage Feb. 14, 1929. The call was part of the plot

The garage at 2122 North Clark street was in two parts, the front section an office. Clark street at that point is a busy thoroughfare. Nearby is Lincoln park and its cliff of towering apartment houses and hotels.

While on of the Moranites, John May, worked on a truck, the other six, Frank and Pete Gusenberg, Adam Heyer, James Clark, Albert Weinshank and Dr. Reinhart H. Schwimmer, an optometrist, sat around the table. A police dog was tied to the truck.

Disguised as Officers

About 11 o'clock, two men in police uniforms entered the front door. They let in two others by the back door. The quartet left a few minutes later, having fired 70 rounds of machine gun bullets and two shotgun charges into the seven Moranites.

At Garfield avenue the car attempted to turn west, but a truck blocked the street, so they pulled across a street car track and turned west on the wrong side of the thoroughfare. A high official of the school board on the street car plainly saw the two men in the front seat.

A few days later the burned chassis of the car used in the crime was found in a north side garage The killers had taken care to pose as police.

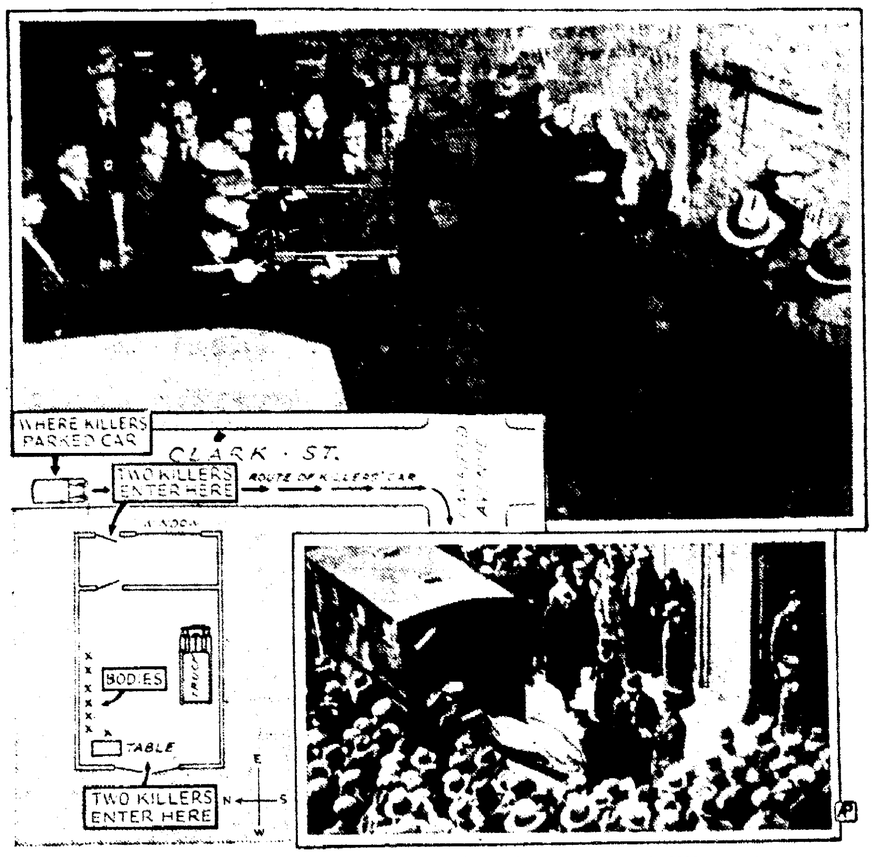
Jack McGurn called a Capone machine-gunner, and John Scalisi, another Capone follower, were charged with the massacre. Scalisi, however, was slain, and the case against McGurn was dropped.

Authorities say the record in the St. Valentine's day killing is perfect. The four killers were identified by one or more persons; the bullets in the victims and empty shells were traced to two machine guns owned by Burke; the car the killers used was found and an affidavit was obtained from a garage attendant where the machine was repaired and altered to resemble a police squad car.

Until Burke killed a policeman at St. Joseph, Mich., the record of the two weapons was barren. Two machine guns were found in a bungalow where Burke lived. It was found that the shells and pellets in the garage were fired from the Burke guns. A coroner's jury ordered Burke arrested, but he never has been caught

The next story of this series will deal with Jack Kraft's mysterious death near New Orleans.

HOW THE ST. VALENTINE'S DAY SLAYING OF SEVEN WAS ENACTED



Police records pile up, and yet Chicago's St. Valentine's day massacre of 1929 remains unsolved. Above is the scene when police re-enacted the slaying of seven gangsters in a North Clark street garage. Below is the crowd that gathered while police removed the bodies after the machine gun execution. The chart shows how the killers trapped their victims.

WHEAT DROPS TO NEW LOW

Report of Farm Board's Withdrawal from Market Hurts Prices.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 23—An immediate fall of more than a cent a bushel in wheat today followed announcement that the farm board would not attempt to maintain prices beyond May. Forced down by a rush of selling, July delivery representing the new 1931 crop, tumbled quickly to 61 cents, a new bottom record unequalled in many years. Opening unchanged to 1c off, wheat afterward receded further. Corn started ¼@⅜c lower and continued to descend.

Flurried stop-loss selling by wheat holders unable or unwilling to keep ownership of July contracts carried the market off soon to 2½ cents under Saturday's closing, when vain hopes had still prevailed in various quarters that for at least a while longer than announced the farm board would continue efforts to keep the market pegged at an artificial standard of values. The fact that the farm board will uphold prices for deliveries of old 1930 wheat, held the market for March and May contracts virtually unchanged, despite weakness of July and September quotations. Factors other than the farm board announcement were ignored.

Corn and oats prices gave way as a result of sympathy with semi-demoralization of the wheat market. The weakness of all grain prices was intensified by predictions ascribed to an American Farm Bureau's spokesman that wheat would go as low as 50 cents a bushel by autumn. On today's downward plunge, corn at one time showed about 1½ cents loss comparative with Saturday, and reached the lowest level yet this season.

Provision trade was in early a comatose condition, but with prices nominally steady.

Federal Wheat Purchases To End, Board Forecasts

Farmer Must Solve Own Problem in Future, Official Statement Says; Crop Limitation and Efficiency Again Advised.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 23 — Learning he cannot expect the government to attempt stabilization of the 1931 wheat crop, the farmer today had two alternatives—to limit production to domestic demand or accept world prices.

The farm board made it clear yesterday that its grain stabilization corporation will not try artificial price maintenance indefinitely, since the work is of an emergency nature and expensive.

The board reiterated in a statement, however, it planned no change in policy in respect to 1930 wheat, now being stabilized through the purchase of surplus stocks.

About 200,000,000 bushels of wheat have been bought by the stabilization corporation out of a $500,000,000 revolving fund authorized by congress.

Reports Large Savings

Claiming these purchases in 1929 and 1930 saved wheat farmers "many millions of dollars," the board said it could not indefinitely go on buying and holding these stocks.

"Farmers know this," the board said, "and would ask that it be done. It would not be, in the long run, in the farmers' own interest."

Permanent relief lies in acreage reduction and efficient production methods, it said, renewing its plea for drastic curtailment. It saw some progress in this direction.

Saying it is too early to state its sales policy in respect to unloading its holdings, the board promised to handle it "in such a way as to impose a minimum of burden upon domestic and world prices."

The board said nothing about cotton, of which it now holds 1,800,000 bales.

Huge Sum Expended

How much the board expended in price stabilization operations is conjectural, but it exceeds $150,000,000. Late in 1929 it first entered the wheat pit, buying 60,000,000 bushels at an estimated cost of $75,000,000. In February, 1930, when dollar wheat became a reality the board again bought at as high as 13 cents above prevailing prices.

BOARD OF CONTROL TO CONSIDER BIDS

Three Matters To Be Disposed of by Mayor Jones and Aids.

The city board of control probably will go into executive session some time this week to dispose of three pending matters.

The board Saturday received two proposals from Harold W. Cobb of Marion to lease Marion airport for one year with the privilege of renewing his lease for the second and third years. The first proposal provides a rental fee of $250 a year plus five per cent of the income of the port from hangar storage and sales of gasoline and oil, with the privilege of renewing at the same terms for the second and third years. The second proposal provides annual rent of $600 for the first year, with privilege of a renewal for one year, and the privilege to renew the lease a third year for $480.

Twelve bids for furnishing a variety of materials used in the service department are also before the board. These materials include cement, stone, sand, gravel, road oil, tar and street patching materials. Bids for these materials were opened Saturday by the board.

No action has yet been taken on bids submitted Saturday a week ago for a street sanitationer to be purchased for the service department with gasoline tax funds. The sanitationer will be used in the upkeep of city streets.

CAR ON RAMPAGE TEARS UP LAWNS

Owner Given $10 Fine in Municipal Court This Morning.

Several front lawns along Church street at Pennsylvania avenue were torn up early Sunday morning by a Dodge sedan which ended its plunge against a tree and overturned.

Two persons were in the car, a man giving his name as Francis D. Boyd, 32, of Bucyrus, and Mrs. Boyd.

Neither was hurt. Both were taken to police station for questioning. A charge of intoxication was placed against Boyd, and he was fined $10 this morning in municipal court after pleading guilty. Mrs. Boyd was released after she had been questioned.

A further investigation will be made, according to Police Chief William E. Marks, who said this morning he was not yet ready to divulge details of the accident.

The crash happened at 7 a. m. Sunday, shortly after the couple left an uptown restaurant.

The car was taken to the Stoltz garage.

Law Tightening Grip on Chicago 'Public Enemies'

Campaign Against 28 Designated as Leading Gangsters Getting Results: Appeals Court Upholds Neimoth Conviction.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 23—The law appears to be tightening its grip on Chicago's "public enemies."

One by one the men so classified by the authorities have been stacking their wits against the agencies of the law—and have lost.

The latest to feel the attack is William Neimoth, whose conviction for participation in a $47,000 payroll robbery in Baltimore in 1926 has been upheld by the court of appeals at Annapolis. Neimoth was sentenced to 10 years.

Neimoth's apparent failure to escape punishment followed closely the conviction of No. 1 on the list of 28 enemies—Alphonse Capone, who was sentenced to six months for contempt of federal court in Chicago. The charge grew out of his failure to respond to a summons from the grand jury which was investigating incomes. He is trying to avoid the penalty by an appeal.

Meanwhile Chicago police said they would not be surprised to see a new flareup of gangland guns as a result of the slaying Saturday night of Johnny Genaro, known as a Capone henchman and a brother of Joseph "Pepe" Genaro, a "public enemy." They said they believed a quarrel between the Genaro brothers and Jimmy Belcastro and Rocco Fanelli, also "public enemies," was responsible.

Two on the original list have been killed—Joe Aiello, north side gang leader, who walked into a machine gun ambush last fall, and Jack Zuta, slain last August in Delafield, Wis., a month later he had been questioned in connection with the slaying of Alfred Lingle, the Tribune reporter.

All of the public enemies have been the subject of an attack by local authorities as vagrants, while federal officials have used the income tax law and deportation and contempt proceedings as their weapons. Capone's vagrancy case is still pending.

Hardin County Sheriff Sells Two Properties

KENTON, March 23—Two properties were sold at sheriff's sale. The Harrod State bank made the highest bid on a property in Alger, appraised at $450 in the bank's suit against Eugene E. Klinger and others. The purchase price was $300. W. L. Lamb purchased 31.5 acres in McDonald township on his high bid of $1,950. The farm was appaised at $2,000, and was sold through the suit of Lamb against Edith Lamb and others.

867 ACCIDENTS IN YEAR

BUCYRUS, March 23—During 1930 Crawford county had 867 industrial accidents, five of which resulted fatally, according to an annual report by the Industrial commission of Ohio.

The bar association voted to place the photographs in the courtroom on a motion by Attorney L. E. Myers. A committee is completing arrangements to obtain the pictures.

DAYTON PATROLMAN ACCUSED IN HOLDUP

Alleged Canfession of Bandit Implicates Officers in $8,000 Robbery.

By International News Service.

DAYTON, O., March 23—Implicated by the alleged confession of one of the suspected bandits, James R. Foote, Dayton patrolman, and Edward J. Roberts, former officer, today were to be questioned in connection with an $8,000 payroll robbery here last August 9.

The pair was arrested yesterday after Albert Lachmeyer, who was returned here from West Bend, Wis., where he was arrested as one of the bandits, accused Foote and Roberts of having planned and directed the payroll holdup, authorities stated.

Elwood Shipley, already sentenced to Mansfield reformatory for the robbery, has corroborated Lachmeyer's accusations, officers said.

Both Foote and Roberts have denied any connection with the holdup. Authorities said the pair would probably be given a hearing today.

IN MEMORY OF A LOVED ONE

In memory of the death of Wallen Lenole Martin on March 23, 1930.
The circle is broken—one chair is vacant,
A dear one from us has been taken.
One heart from among us no longer shall thrill
With joy in our gladness or grief in our ill.
There seems a shadow on the day
Her smile no longer cheers;
A dimness on the stars of night,
Like we that look through tears.
Hold him, O Father! in Thine arms.
And let him ever be
A messenger of love between
Our saddened hearts and Thee.
Mrs. W. L. Martin and Children.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our darling little son, Merrill Don Keggan, who passed away two years ago yesterday, March 22, 1929.
There is some one who misses you sadly,
And finds the time long since you went;
There is some one who thinks of you always,
And tries to be brave and content.
You will never be forgotten,
Years can never ease the pain
In the hearts of those who love you,
Till the day we meet again.
Mother and Daddy,
Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Keggan Jr.

"What Shall I Wear?"

Choosing one's Spring wardrobe is going to be a real adventure this season. For it has been years since women have had the opportunity that they now have, to express their individuality in clothes. That is why there is so much interest in the new Printzess coats and suits which we have just received.

The assortment is smartly varied, and every model reveals its Paris origin in subtle lines that are figure-fitted, sophisticated and very flattering to wear. Coats in the mode's newest versions show greater originality than ever in design, fabric and decorative detail. There are "Travelure" modes for travel, town and sports as well as more elaborate styles for afternoon and dress wear. New colors in quiet, monotone effects as well as the sprightlier shades add interest to choosing.

And the suits will be a joy to every woman's heart! Clever affairs with intriguing little jackets that will make you look ever so youthfully slim and trim. Some proclaim their Russian background in cossack lines, others are of the "dressmaker" type, graceful and feminine. All are immensely chic.

O. S. U. Engineer Points To Advantages of Canal

Professor C. E. Sherman Bases Opinion on Long Study of Ohio Rivers and Streams; Large Reserves of Natural Resources Could Be Tapped.

Editor's Note: In the fourth of a series of articles published in The Star dealing with the proposed Ohio-River - Great Lakes waterway Professor C. E. Sherman of Ohio State university, cites his reasons for favoring the Portsmouth-Sandusky route which passes through Marion county.

* * *

With an Ohio river-Lake Erie canal almost assured in the next few years, it is apparent that the central Ohio route, passing through Marion county, is a natural geographic advantage to the entire nation, in the opinion of C. E. Sherman, professor of civil engineering at Ohio State university and for 10 years engaged measuring the runoff of rivers and creeks in the state.

This opinion was revealed in a statement to the army engineers at Washington D. C. The statements of Sherman lend weight to a concerted movement throughout central Ohio to bring the route of the proposed waterway through this section.

Sherman's Statements

Following are statements, in part, made by Sherman when he appeared before engineers.

"The central Ohio route is the direct connection between the nation's greatest deposits of raw material, iron ore on the northwest and metallurgical coal in the south.

"Populous portions of five states, Ohio, Michigan, Eastern Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia and Tennessee, are directly concerned and benefited if the waterway is built over the central Ohio route.

"The area at the south end of the central Ohio route is an immense reserve of metallurgical coal, far exceeding the coal reserve in the area around Pittsburgh, the base of another proposed route for the waterway. The latter area has been drawn upon for a long while for coal east and west, and is now needed as reserve for the industries of its own district, as well as for the areas east and northeast which depend upon it for fuel. In consequence a decreasing amount of coal from the Pittsburgh district will in the future proceed to the lakes for the northwest.

Fewer Railroads

"The central route crosses fewer important railroads. It offers larger bridge-clearances to boats than does the other popular route. The Pittsburgh route would break, with drawbridges, five important trunk line railroads. The central route would break only one railroad at Sandusky bay where a draw bridge is now in use.

"The central Ohio route will also validate and favor Ohio river improvements more than any other route. It strikes Ohio river more nearly at the center of its active portion, and what is more important, it controls the greatest portion of Ohio river in time of transit of freight in all directions to and from the lakes.

"Central Ohio would not care for a waterway if it were only a freight canal. We claim large conservation benefits from the construction of this route. In fact, Columbus and central Ohio are primarily interested in this whole project from the conservation standpoint. Such a riverway would furnish protection from floods, a supply of industrial water and water parks and other benfits."

AUSTRIA-GERMANY MOVE PROTESTED

Proposed Customs Treaty Hit by France, Italy and Czechoslovakia.

By The Associated Press.

VIENNA, March 23—Quick to resent a collaboration which they feel may bear the speed of a dread "Mitteleuropa," France, Italy and Czechoslovakia have made formal protest at a projected Austro-German treaty of customs union.

Diplomatic representatives of the three countries in a Sunday call upon Dr. Johann Schober, foreign minister, informed him their governments wished to remind Austria that the conclusion of such a union would infringe the Geneva protocol of Oct. 4, 1922.

This protocol is that in which Austria, obtaining a loan from the former allied countries, reiterated its agreement of the treaty of Saint Germain, between Austria and the allies, to preserve and guard zealously its independence.

Dr. Schober is understood to have furnished the three diplomats with explanations of the projected pact between Germany and Austria, attempting to show them that it in no way compromised the protocol and did not impair Austrian independence.

But the Eskimos wouldn't believe it.

FOUR KILLED IN AIR CRASHES

Two Pleasure Planes Fall at Los Angeles Within Period of 20 Minutes.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Calif., March 23—Death rode the skies here yesterday, wrecking two pleasure airplanes and taking a toll of four lives within a period of 20 minutes.

The first to crash were Albert Wadleigh, 35, writer of air and western stories, and his wife, Lorene Wadleigh, 32. They died in a rented biplane. Wadleigh said his wife would take the controls as soon as they were off the ground and witnesses said they believed the ship got out of control while the change was being made.

Aline Miller, 22, saleswoman employed by the Emsco Aircraft company, took Ivan de Villiers, 40, motion picture airplane stunt flier, for a pleasure hop from Grand Central terminal. They were about 500 feet up when the plane sideslipped and crashed. Both were killed.

NEW REMEDY FOUND FOR ANEMIA VICTIMS

Experiments with "Metalized Milk" Arouse Hope for Sufferers.

By The Associated Press

EMORY UNIVERSITY, Ga., March 23—Increasing hope for sufferers from anemia is being provided here through experiments with "metalized milk."

Dr. J. L. McGhee, head of the department of bio-chemistry, says that virtually all anemia victims have shown improvement after drinking the fluid.

In one experiment conducted in a Georgia cotton mill, 138 out of 140 workers showed a big increase in the percentage of hemoglobin, the coloring matter of the red corpuscles, from the treatment.

The "metalized milk" is simply raw milk in which an alloy of copper and iron has been soaked until small quantities have dissolved. Dr. McGhee is now conducting extensive experiments to determine the most effective amount of the metals for the treatment, and also to discover if any other combination of metals would be superior to iron and copper.

Although more students were enrolled in Marion schools in February than in January the per cent of attendance was lower last month than in the previous one. The total number of pupils enrolled in February was 6,516 as compared with 6,487 for the first month of the year.

The cases of truancy dropped from 15 but the number of tardiness cases jumped from 189 to 206. This is a greater number of tradiness cases than in 1930. In the perfect attendance the figures dropped from 3,619 in January to 3,254 in February.

Thirty-four students transferred from Marion to schools out of town. This loss, however, was made up in the number of students that transferred from out of town schools to local buildings, 53 pupils being entered as new students during February.

The percent of attendance for Marion schools for February follows: Pearl Street 96.1; Forest Lawn and Indiana Avenue 95.8; Harding 95.6; Olney Avenue 95.1; Greenwood 94.6; Central Junior 94.4; Vernon Heights Junior 94.4; Davids Street 94.4; Oakland Heights 94.2; Lincoln 93.7; Oak Street 93.4; North Main Street 93; State Street 92.5; Glenwood 92.3; Mark Street 91.3 and Silver Street 90.4.

THE SPRINGTIME OF LIFE

Sow wisely in the springtime of life, and in the years to come you will reap a rich harvest, and live in contentment. Every man can command his own future, and be well-to-do financially; or poor and miserable as he alone directs. Every man can make provision for his future years; if he but spends his money wisely, and saves a part of his income during working years. Do not let your fate be HARD WORK at the age of sixty or over, but rather let it be leisure, ease and comfort. Begin to provide for your future now, in the springtime of your youth and when your working days are at their best. The future may seem a long way off, but it soon becomes a present reality. Do not wait until it is too late or you may have regrets.

THEATER NEWS AND REVIEWS

ANN HARDING AT PALACE THEATER IN "EAST LYNNE"

Old Melodrama, Popular Since 1870, Billed for Screen Here.

BY HALLIE HOUCK

ANN HARDING

LOVELY ANN HARDING, one of our favorites since "Holiday," has been starred in "East Lynne," the play which has survived time and tide since the '70's. The play comes to the Palace, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, with Miss Harding in the role of "Isabel," Conrad Nagel in the role of "Robert Carlyle" and Clive Brooks as the handsome, villianous "Francis Levison."

"East Lynne" was one of the most popular plays the Marion Mimes has produced to date, and following close on its presentation here as a stage play is the finished talking picture product.

Cecilia Loftus plays the role of "Cornelia Carlyle," sister of Conrad Nagel. O. P. Heggie is "Mount Severn," Flora Sheffield is "Barbara" and David Torrence is "Richard Hale."

Extras numbering 3,718 were employed by Director Frank Lloyd in the filming of this Fox Movietone picture. The wedding scene of Isabel and Carlyle in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, required 567 beautiful women and handsome men; a hunting ball scene employed about the same number of the dress type extras; and a Viennese scene required 472 extras. Parisian street sequences and brief war scenes utilized 2,730 men, women and children, while 1,000 others were required for the Prussian bombardment of Paris.

WALTZ TUNES HELP MAKE OHIO SHOW A GREAT PICTURE

"Viennese Nights" Slips Away to Accompaniment of Waltzes.

HAUNTING, lovely waltz tunes away through "Viennese Nights," at the Ohio tonight through Wednesday. The music is the outstanding merit of the picture, but it is such music that it will live long after the picture has been forgotten.

The story of love in Vienna is incidental to the music and the theme of the pictures—the immortality of beauty, whether in music or love. Alexander Gray and Vivienne Segal love each other but Walter Pidgeon, an officer in the king's army, wins her because of her father's wishes.

Gray goes to America and plays in a theater orchestra, always working on his great symphony of which Vivienne has been the inspiration. Miss Segal's granddaughter, Alice Day, loves a young American composer but her grandmother wishes her to marry a wealthy Austrian nobleman to replenish the family coffers.

Miss Day takes her to hear the young American's introductory concert in Vienna, and the grandmother recognizes the opening strains of her beloved's unfinished symphony. To the surprise of the huge audience, she rises in her box and sings the words of which she in all the world knows. Miss Day and Mr. Gray, playing the part of his own grandson, live over again the romance of their grandparents.

The picture is in technicolor and has been carefully and beautifully directed. Louise Fazenda and Bert Roach offer the comedy. A newsreel and short comedy complete the bill. H. H

Fay Wray has a lot of protection in "Not Exactly Gentleman," closing at the Marion Tuesday night. Lew Cody, a Mississippi gambler, Eddie Gribbon a Texas horse thief and big Victor McLaglen, a Canadian bad man, each flying from the law in his locality, join forces and decide to go to the Black Hills where gold has been discovered in the Dakota territory which is about to be opened.

They meet the girl when another gang beats them to it in attempting to rob her wagon. The three save her and find that her father has been killed by Robert Warwick, outlaw leader. The villain loves the beautiful girl in his own bad way, and the three think she's a pretty nice girl. She meets her boyhood sweetheart, David Worth. Warwick kidnaps her and a mine map which she owns. The three outlaws beat Warwick to the claim, fight him off, and stake the claim for Miss Wray.

Just when she's offering them a 50-50 split, a marshal and his posse who have been on the fugitive's trail, ride up. Regretfully leaving the gold, they gallop away for parts unknown. Rather Don Quixoteish.

Billie ammond, the xylophonist on the vaudeville program at the Palace tonight, does some jazz tricks on the instrument that we didn't know could be done with such ease and deftness. She knows her xylophoning. Joe and Moe from Kokomo are fair black-face comedians with their songs and jokes and music. The flash act is the "Dance Aristocrats."

Nicely costumed, good dancing, everything but the singing clicked.

And on the screen Jack Oakie is good for a lot of laughs as the dumbell electrician who thinks he's a song writer. The lines are sure-fire, which shows that it pays to hire Ring Lardner to write the wisecracks. Ring is one of the wits of America and Oakie knows how to put over his comedy.

You'll like the picture—you can't help it if you like to laugh and Oakie, with Francis Dee, Sam Hardy, June MacCloy and Harry Akst—almost stealing the show—supporting him, gives you something to chuckle about.

A news reel, Edna Bern at the organ, and a comedy fill out the two-hours and more program. The orchestra is sounding better every week. H. H.

FOUR HERDS O K

Dr. Gruber Announces Partial Results of Test.

Four herds of cattle successfully passing the blood test for Bang's disease have been announced by Dr. J. T. Gruber, milk and food inspector. The herds are owned by Ross Showers of LaRue, F. E. Moyer of Waldo, J. W. Rodefer of Prospect and Guy Miller of Morral.

The tests are being conducted free of charge by Dr. Gruber to insure greater safety in the use of raw milk. Pasteurization of milk kills the Bang's disease bacteria which cause undulant fever when passed into the human body in raw milk.

Adopt New Rule for Sororities at O. W. U.

Special to The Star

DELAWARE, O., March 23—Second-year rushing has been adopted for Ohio Wesleyan university sororities, officials announced today.

The proposal, which was almost unanimously passed by the faculty, provides that, beginning next fall, no women's group may invite any student to join until her third semester has started. The fact that all freshman women will be housed in Stuyvesant hall, new dormitory which will be ready for occupancy in September, is said to have influenced the action.

ST. MARY'S SCHOOL LEADS IN CONTEST

Forty-Four Per Cent of Students Have Teeth Examined in Campaign.

Increased interest in the teeth examination contest in nine Marion elementary schools is being shown by the pupils, according to Miss Esther Tress, Red Cross nutritionist, who is in charge of the contest.

St. Mary's school leads the list with 44 per cent of the pupils having their teeth examined and corrected by a dentist. Forest Lawn school is second with 26 per cent, Greenwood 24 per cent, Lincoln 16 per cent, Indiana avenue 14 per cent, Pearl street 13.9 per cent, State street 13.1 per cent, Mark street 11 per cent and Olney avenue 10 per cent.

The contest started Feb. 1 and will end in May. The winner will receive a rotating cup given last year to Greenwood school for having the largest percentage of students with inspected teeth.

Among interesting discoveries in the contest so far is the fact that nearly 75 per cent of the children who go to the dentists to have their teeth inspected are in need of corrective work, according to Miss Tress. Since the condition of a child's teeth directly affects his health, Miss Tress is urging all parents to cooperate with her in an effort.

SIX KILLED IN BRITISH WRECK

Royal Scot Express Derailed While Traveling 70 Miles an Hour.

By United Press.

LONDON BUZZARD, ENG., March 23—Relief crews and physicians throughout the country moved injured and dead from the wreckage of three coaches of the Royal Scot express, which was derailed at the station here early today with a loss of at least six lives.

It was reported that more of the injured would die. The train was the fastest in the world and was traveling about 70 miles an hour when it struck a switch. Two coaches were telescoped, and another turned and every car on the train was derailed.

Many persons were injured, some seriously, many slightly. The engineer and fireman were killed. One of the passengers killed was Sir Henry Fairmarsh, an authority on aviation, who had just returned from Australia.

There were agonizing scenes as the rescue work proceeded. The injured were buried under tons of wreckage and it required hours to release some of them.

The Scotch amateur soccer team was returning England Saturday on the train but all escaped injury.

Praises Administration

In his address of welcome Mayor Emilio Fangot of Ponce told President Hoover that his administration had produced more legislation for solving the island's problems than any since the beginning of American sovereignty in Porto Rico. This fact, he said, had served to renew the interest of Porto Rico and to revive their hopes that Porto Rico might be incorporated on a basis of constitutional equality as a self-governing state in the union.

He predicted that the incorporation of Porto Rico into the United States would "exemplify the possibility of a Pan-American commonwealth under the Stars and Stripes, where Anglo-Saxon and Latin civilization shall blend together in the furtherance of a common destiny.

President Hoover was given an elaborate embroidered banquet cloth on which had been worked designs of the favorite flowers of all of the Presidents who have held office since Porto Rico became part of the United States. The poppy, designated by President Hoover as his favorite flower, was included in the design.

Up to the last minute a small, active group of nationalists continued their opposition to the entertainment program, urging all Porto Ricans, "for their own dignity" not to participate.

SERUM KILLS CANCER TISSUE

Development of New Remedy Reported at London Hospital.

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor.

NEW YORK, March 23—Cancer tissue growing artificially in glass dishes is killed in a few minutes with a new serum developed in the cancer research laboratory of London hospital, England.

These discoveries and their possibilities for experimenting with cancer in man are told in the April issue of the American Journal of Cancer by Thomas Lumsden, M. D., director of the London laboratory. The journal is edited by Dr. Francis Carter Wood of Columbia university.

The serum comes from animals which have been inoculated with cancer. It is tested upon cells of cancer, of heart, kidney and other body tissues growing artificially outside of living beings. A start has been made in testing it upon living animals. A few rats have been cured of cancer, and others made immune.

"Animals," Dr. Lumsden says, are capable of forming anti-bodies having a specifically lethal effect upon malignant tumor cells of any variety, but which are non-toxic to normal cells."

Whatever these protective anti-bodies are, human cancers also possess them, Dr. Lumsden reports.

What the human prospective principle can do for animals, the latter can do for humans. As an example Dr. Lumsden tells of inoculating a rabbit with mouse cancer and putting it in human breast cancer cells living in a glass dish.

"It causes the death of these cancer cells," says Dr. Lumsden. He warns that these experiments "should be regarded as giving only useful observations."

Accessories Give Final Touch to Stylish Dress

IT'S in the bag.

Patent leather bags in brilliant and pastel colors is exciting. They are found on the spring market in all shapes and sizes, especially the imporant looking envelope bag and the fatter pouchy one. They're carried when you wear your street or afternoon dress. The colors should exactly match or harmonize with your costume.

Snake and lizard skin are always good in the springtime, but alligator and white pig (it washes) add a fresh note of interest.

Small bags of seed pearl or brocade are what you'll be carrying when you go dancing. They are quite simple except for the mounting which is often intricately carved.

Tweeds that feel rough and woolly to the touch are excellent for sports wear. For your plaid waistcoat you can't find anything jauntier than a bag of matching plaid.

• • •

GLOVES have done all manner of strange things this spring. For afternoon wear the four-button pull on is the most fashionable length. But its smartness by no means ends there. Some gloves are perforated, others have a curving insert in a contrasting color down the back. Some gloves have even grown frills. Many have contrasting colors in applique and novelty stitching.

The plain capeskin glove, simply stitched is always in good taste.

The only way that you can achieve the correct silhouette is by wearing a girdle. Even though you are slim, you need a light, boneless one that will give definitely graceful lines to your figure.

White pigskin bags! That may sound ridiculous, but it's not. They will wear forever and you can scrub them, but the nicest thing about them is that this is the first season pigs have been used in just that way.

• • •

LONG gloves for evening in pastel or white are smart. When you're dancing the fingers of the glove should be tucked in at the wrist. For people who enjoy creating effects there is the jewelled glove in white or pastel shades that is often gathered tucks for its whole sixteen button length.

The dresses which will be worn most frequently on the street will be lightweight woolen, crepe, voile and sheer basketweaves.

Satin is the leading material for evening. Lights bring out the softness of its gleam and the delicacy of its color. It's smart, graceful, lovely . . what else could one ask?

ron are only 40 minutes apart by automobile, the verdict may hinge on this testimony.

The state claims the revolver found outside the apartment was sold to Martin by Morris Liebermann, a former policeman who is held as a material witness. Mrs. Liebermann said the sale, which Liebermann denies, occurred at an East Side place. The gun was not found, however, until a week after Potter was buried and it was reported D. L. Cowles, police ballistic expert, had been unable to determine whether the bullet that killed Potter was fired from it.

Approximately 30 state witnesses have been summoned, among them Mrs. Betty Gray, who has been secreted for some time. It was Mrs. Gray who said she saw Martin in the murder apartment building and furnished information which led to his arrest in Pittsburgh.

Other state witnesses will include Fred C. Laub, who rented the suite to "Markus," residents who heard the shots fired, and Mrs. Laub, who discovered the body six days after the slaying.

The work of impanelling a jury is not expected to be finished before Wednesday. A special venire of 75 was called today.

NEW YORK GUESSING ABOUT MAYOR JIMMY

Opinions on Governor's Course of Action Vary; Conference Held Sunday.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 23—Gotham was rife with speculation today awaiting the action of Governor Roosevelt on charges against Mayor Walker.

The Times said the governor was expected to send to Mayor Walker for answer to the charges filed by the city affairs committee.

The Herald-Tribune quoted a close friend of the chief executive as saying the charges probably would be dropped as too vague and indefinite.

Referee Samuel Seabury, who has been conducting an inquiry into magistrates' courts and who was appointed commissioner to inquire into the conduct of District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain, conferred with the governor at the latter's home in Hyde park for four hours yesterday. Nothing of the conference was made public.

Prediction that the charges Mayor Walker would be dismissed, the Herald-Tribune said, was based on the fact that a search of records by the mayor's friends yielded no precedent for removal of an elective official where the charges do not involve malfeasance in office or personal corruption.

"Mother" Pickett, Wife of Confederate General, Dies

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 23—Mother" Pickett of the snow-white hair and charming accent no more will tell of the last confederate charge at Gettysburg or draw word pictures of interesting characters and incidents.

In a private hospital yesterday Mrs. La Salle Corbell Pickett, called "mother" even by Presidents, died of hardening of the arteries in her eighty-third year. With her passed the tingling tale she told of how Confederates stormed up Cemetery Ridge at Gettysburg on July 3, 1863, only to be repulsed.

She had reason to know that story well. She was 15 when she married the officer who led the southern forces—General George Edward Pickett. Before his death in 1875 she became known as "the child bride of the confederacy."

praised for her vivacity and beauty.

A favorite in society, she knew every president beginning with Lincoln. One of her most colorful manuscripts, entitled "my memory chain," was left unfinished by her death.

She was an honorary president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy; former president of the League of American penwomen; member of the Women's National Press association and a founder of the Arts club of Washington. bitter feeling in this country. The comment was made that it had been logical to hope that any honest effort to overcome the economic depression of European states, no matter by whom inaugurated, would receive encouragement.

Official information of the contemplated union took the Austrian commercial world entirely by surprise, since German competition was an element greatly feared in Austria. Fears have been somewhat allayed by information that existing duties on Austrian weak industrial products will remain in force for many years.

Union Described

The union is described as only a nominal one designed to stimulate neighboring countries to embark upon so-called regional preferential treaties.

Dr. Schoberger's comment is that the plan is still only in project form, requiring long negotiations because of which it is too early for outsiders to become alarmed or to protest.

NOBIL'S

Scarfs and Cuffs Feature Popular Spring Coat Styles

IN attempting to present an authentic picture of the spring coat mode in a general, practical way that will be a safe guide for the woman of average social activities, average type of figure and of average financial means, the outstanding new and wearable features are as follows:

The importance of new spongy woolens, rough-surfaced pebbly weaves that are used in coats of the dressy type as well as for sports and casual needs: A new colorfulness, whether it consists of having the fur dyed to match the bright shades of the woolens, or a contrasting fur; elaborate collar and cuff treatments; collars that extend into revers or jabot effects, either fur-trimmed or furless, cuffs that extend to the elbow or above it, flaring out shapely at the top; the silhouette slightly flared, semi-fitted a straighter, slimmer line that may be broken by a belt or beltless; flat furs predominating, but with fluffy furs introduced in coats of the afternoon type.

If a woman were to ask any fashion authority for the last word on spring coats, she would probably answer briefly, "scarfs and cuffs." This is particularly noticeable in the all-fabric coat that seems to be one of the newest coat expressions for spring and one that is bound to be popular for a good many reasons.

One is, the possibility it presents for variety, with its collarless coat and separate scarf which may be draped in such a manner of smart ways. One day the wearer may have a coat with a cape effect, the next day a coat with revers or fischu, the next a mannish sports looking garment with the scarf pertly crossed in the real London manner. And it will really be the same coat all the while, the scarf is the secret of its versatility.

Variety in Cuffs

By way of variety in cuff treatments there are numerous interpretations of the tight sleeve to which is added an upstanding fabric band simulating a flared outline just above or about the elbow, cuffs of shaped contours and attached cuffs topped by stitching.

Keep it flat. Gaylak, lapin, dyed to match the color of the coat fabric, leopard, ermine, so intricately worked that they are part of the line of the coat rather than a trimming. The point is to work out a one-color harmonious color scheme so that if the coat is of a certain color, the fur will blend exactly with the color of the woolen. It is not unusual and indeed very smart to wear a collarless coat with cuffs, only, of fur.

Slimmer and Straighter Coats

Silhouettes lean toward the straighter lines, and pleats seem destined to play an important part because they have a way of preserving a slim hip line when they are stitched down flat to a point where they only provide for freedom at the hem.

PREDICTS NEW MOVE IN WHEAT PROBLEM

Congress To Take Hand, Gray Says; Foresees 50-Cent Market.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 23—A prediction that optional use of the export debenture and the equalization fee would be substituted for stabilization operations came today from Chester H. Gray, of the American Farm Bureau federation.

Gray, Washington representative of the organization, pointed to abandonment by the farm board of stabilization operations in wheat as the fore runner of a congressional move to strip the board of this power and substitute the two points of contention in the long campaign for farm relief.

"This will be done by friends of the act; not its enemies," he said.

Gray predicted 50 cent wheat as a result of the board's announcement of yesterday.

"The action of the board," Gray said, "means that the burden of taking care of crop surpluses has been thrown back on the farmer where it always has been. Farmers don't need a farm board to tell them that."

He observed that farmers would reduce acreage only when economic conditions absolutely forced them, and expressed belief that next fall if wheat prices dropped to 50 cents, as he thought, they would, production would be curtailed.

Daily Proverb—"It is no easy matter to bear prosperity decently."

Police Commissioner Mulrooney, of New York City, has suspended two policemen who refused to testify in a vice graft case. Why not? Is not their refusal tantamount to confession that they would either have to commit perjury or incriminate themselves?

Robert Dollar, of steamship line fame, took occasion on his eighty-seventh birthday anniversary last week to tell the secret of longevity. "Work hard, and forget your years" is the advice he offered, and while he beyond all doubt is an exceptional man, it's pretty good advice at that.

Alfred E. Smith says that prohibition is a political question. But why the need of such a declaration in this day and age? Though it should not be, has it not been made a political issue by its friends and foes alike?

The Chinese national government reports that its forces routed the red bandits in Kiangsi province, killing 1,000 of them. The trouble with Chinese reports along this line is that there is always a wide margin between the number reported killed and the number of bodies needing interment.

Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, told Dartmouth students that were Daniel Webster in the senate today he might address empty seats. Naturally. Members have been fed cheap vaudeville so long that they no longer anticipate real oratory and consequently vacate the chamber when one of their number begins to "orate."

Another ground for criticism of Jouett Shouse's insinuation that President Hoover was responsible for the selection of Senator Felix Hebert, of Rhode Island, as chairman of the senate sub-committee appointed to study unemployment insurance, is that it was utterly without foundation of fact, but it's hardly probable that Jouett could be expected to regard a little thing like that.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has pledged whatever sum is necessary up to $2,516,222 toward the construction and furnishing of "International House" at the University of Chicago as a home and club for the university's foreign students. Who can tell? Mr. Rockefeller may be doing a far greater work for world peace than many of the movements aimed at that end.

Returning to Chicago from the Pacific coast, Owner William Wrigley, Jr., "smiled a broad smile" when asked regarding the Cubs' chances the coming season. Are we to take this as a tip that this year's Chicago National team is to be a winner?

Rivalry between two volunteer fire companies in Mount Holly, New Jersey, to determine which could handle the greater number of fires, has led to the arrest of six firemen, three of whom are charged with arson and held without bail to the grand jury. It is charged that the "competition" led to fires causing property losses aggregating $50,000. Looks like carrying the competitive idea to the extreme.

Movie cowboys wearing chaps, spurs and ten-gallon hats fled in terror to places of safety when a team of ponies ran away out in Hollywood, but a panic was averted when pedestrians stopped the ponies. Still, the screen cowboys can hardly be blamed. There wasn't any director there to tell them what to do.

A Leader Is Dead.

America has heard Germany mentioned principally in terms of Herr Hitler and his Fascist army, in recent months. But it was not the mere fact of increase in legislative voting strength that made the Hitlerites prominent; it was, as well, their ability to grow more powerful in the face of opposition from the leaders of the German republic.

Dr. Herman Mueller, who died late last week at the age of fifty-four years, was a powerful leader of that opposition. Recorded in history as one of the signers of the treaty of Versailles for Germany, he had stood firm for establishment of liberal republican principles in his nation, in contrast to the school of opinion lately maneuvered into a position of power by Herr Hitler favoring a return to the old regime. On his death-bed, Dr. Mueller must have realized that today the outcome of the fight he waged is more doubtful than it ever has been in the troubled years since German soldiers trudged back home after the armistice was signed.

Dr. Mueller's passing is one more milestone in the progress to a new era, when none of the war statesmen will remain. They are passing rapidly, linked arm in arm with the generals whose names were on every tongue during the disastrous war years. A few years more and they will exist only in memory and in records.

Roosevelt and the Walker Charges.

Last Saturday's advices from New York City held out that the indications were strong that Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt would not order an investigation of the official acts of Mayor James J. Walker of that city.

The New York American was quoted as saying that it had learned on unimpeachable authority that the governor would refuse to take action for the reason that he does not consider the charges of malfeasance made against the mayor by the city affairs committee either sufficiently explicit or supported by adequate evidence to justify the taking of action.

The New York Herald Tribune represented Democratic leaders as being convinced that the governor would refuse to name a commissioner to hear the charges and printed a dispatch from Palm Springs, California, stating that the mayor feels that he has nothing to fear and that the governor will have no recourse but to vindicate him.

The New York Times, the leading independent Democratic paper of the city—and the country as well, for that matter—apparently feels, however, that the situation in the city is such that there is need for an investigation and that Mayor Walker should not attempt to sidestep investigation, but rather court it. But the Times is very careful to point out editorially that the investigation should be made by the legislature and not by the governor through an appointee; so careful, in fact, as to justify the impression that it would have Governor Roosevelt remain aloof from a situation, connection with which might impair his political prestige in the state. In fact, reading the editorial of the Times, one is inclined to feel that it would have the governor protected from the possibility of pursuit of a course of action which might embroil him with Tammany Hall, which it is manifestly inclined to hold responsible for the city's government ills rather than the mayor.

Under the circumstances, therefore, the refusal of Governor Roosevelt to order an investigation, should he refuse, will hardly occasion surprise, but no matter what his future course in the matter, he has already given New Yorkers a surprise by the peremptory manner in which he has declared that he would regard questions designed to disclose his view of the accusations against the mayor as improper and out of order and went further by making clear that his injunction extended even to speculation in dispatches sent out from Albany on the political effect of any course of action he might pursue after his examination of the charges—an attitude which is said to be wholly without precedent in a similar situation in recent times.

The position taken by the governor might not have created so great surprise had he not concluded his talk to press representatives by stating that he was the chief magistrate as well as the chief executive of the state of New York and in the former capacity had alike the power to subpoena and the power to commit offenders for contempt.

As we are not within the jurisdiction of the "chief magistrate" of New York state, we feel free to state that, while Mr. Roosevelt may be well within his rights in refusing to answer any questions directed at him and in resenting any question regarding his views or his future course in this particular matter, he is getting on pretty thin ice when he virtually threatens to cite for contempt any press representative who might speculate in his dispatches to his paper on the political effect of any course he, the governor, might determine to pursue.

The governor's course in this latter respect is not one which might be anticipated from one who has been mentioned as the possible standard-bearer of a great party in the presidential campaign of 1932 and very evidently is not adverse to that honor should it be offered him. A man making an utterance under the circumstances which may be construed as a threat, in the judgment of many will not measure up to presidential size.

Nevada's New Scheme.

Nevada's 90,981 citizens are thrilling to wide-open gambling, following the signing of a new state gambling bill last week by Governor Fred Balzar. "Now we can do lawfully what Nevada has always done under cover," Governor Balzar announced.

Descriptions of the start of the new regime say that most gambling places, notably those catering to gamblers in Reno, the state metropolis of 18,000 citizens, will stay open twenty-four hours a day, using three shifts of dealers and croupiers. The city, county and state will share the revenues.

It is misleading, of course, to assume that because Nevada legislators passed a wide-open gambling bill, and because the Nevada governor signed the bill Nevada citizens are more addicted to gambling than citizens of other states. Like the state's new forty-two day divorce law, wide-open gambling is merely a come-on to tourists and, of course, professional gamblers. Unable to pull itself out of the doldrums by enterprise, the state has resorted to a common device—cheapening itself for the sake of the money to be gained. It is fortunate, indeed, that there is only a handful of native Nevada citizens to share in the shame the state should feel.

In the social catalogue there will continue to be certain things that should be suppressed, regardless of the degree of success with which suppression is maintained. Gambling is one of the foremost of these. When Governor Balzar argues that because it is done privately it may as well be done openly, he displays a questionable sense of social balance.

The force of employes of a big Michigan piano plant has been augmented ninety per cent. since January 1 and is now working on a sixty-nine hour week, the orders received by it thus far this month being fifty per cent. greater than during any previous month's shipments. What's the answer? Is the piano taking on a new lease of life?

The New York Federation of Labor and the National Association of Manufacturers were as one at a joint legislative committee hearing in Albany in opposing insurance for the idle, the feeling being that the measure before the committee would encourage unemployment without rendering real relief to those most in need of employment and seeking it. That, it may be said, has been the result of the dole system ov'r in Great Britain.

Editorial Opinion.

THE STATEVILLE REVOLT.

The prison riot in the model penitentiary at Stateville, Illinois, was occasioned, apparently, by the resentment of the convicts against certain decisions of the Illinois parole board. This is merely to say that almost any spark is sufficient to set off the vast magazine of emotional explosives which is a prison population. Though somewhat overcrowded, like almost every great prison in the country, the Stateville institution is from all accounts commodious, sanitary and up-to-date in every particular. Its occupants have little or no complaint of the meals it serves; they bear no special grudge against the warden or his subordinates; they were provided with plenty of workshops and other equipment to keep them from idleness and brooding, and also with generous recreation facilities. In short, the physical conditions of life at Stateville were in marked contrast to those which are supposed to have played such a large part in causing the riots at Auburn and Clinton in this state.

Evidently the material comfort of the prisoner is not the final answer to outbreaks, a fact of which veteran prison executives have been well aware all along. They do not minimize the importance of decent quarters and decent treatment in mitigating convict unrest, but they know from experience that as long as great companies of rebellious men are caged together and strapped to the treadmill of an artificial existence there are bound to come moments of hysterical revolt, and the bigger the prison the more dangerous the violence to be expected.

Stateville, for all its model character, is much too large an institution of its kind. It is equipped to accommodate 2,500 convicts. Penologists are almost a unit in insisting that no more than 1,000 convicts should be congregated in any one prison, that society, instead of building bigger and better bastilles, should subdivide the whole prison population into more manageable groups. The Lewisohn commission has pointed out that if this is done along scientific lines, grading the prisoners according to careful psychiatric observation and providing them with accommodations suited to their records and promise of reform, it will actually save the state money. In any event, Stateville is certainly an argument against the contrary policy.—New York Herald Tribune.

A WARDEN WHO KNOWS HIS BUSINESS.

The retort of the warden at Joliet that he would throw into a solitary cell any prisoner who signed a petition asking for an advisory council of convicts to act with the administrative officials of the penitentiary ought to have a salutary effect on the population of the Joliet and Stateville prisons.

The participants in this week's riots in those institutions, which resulted in the death of three convicts and the destruction of $500,000 worth of state property, are described as largely newcomers in crime. They are fresh from an atmosphere of coddling. Oldtimers knew what was coming to them if they were caught and sent up. Consequently they had no "grievance" against society. They didn't squawk. The new crop of criminals has been taught by people who ought to know better to look upon the penitentiary as a "country club." When it discovers that there is a slight difference, it riots and burns down prison buildings.

Convicts who have to be segregated from society because of their anti-social propensities retain behind the bars only the right to be treated as one treats a dangerous animal. All their other former rights have been forfeited. Society can do what it likes with them; can imprison them or execute them, according to what it regards as necessary to the general interest. The idea that men who have warred on society and been captured and locked up have the right to demand a new parole board whenever they disapprove of the one appointed by the state, would be amusing if the consequences of their acting upon it were not so frequently tragic.

The rioters whom Warden Hill has thrown into solitary confinement will have a chance for their young blood to cool, as well as leisure to reflect that those outside of our penitentiaries are going to rule those inside them. The disposition to destroy life and property in order to influence the treatment accorded them must be burned out of the malignants. Adherence to the firm policy laid down by Warden Hill gives the only hope of stopping further trouble and proving that society's rights are paramount and its word, with respect to convicted criminals, final.—Detroit Free Press.

Temperance and Hygiene.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

In reading the works of Charles Dickens, you are sure to run across characters described as "gouty" persons. Thackeray and other writers of his period frequently spoke of this ailment.

Gout was a penalty paid by the individual who led an inactive life, indulged in little exercise, and lived on the fat of the land. These writers gave it to the "country squire," who in his life had partaken more frequently of alcoholic beverages than of water.

With the growing practice of temperance, gout is far less common. However, the disease may afflict an individual who leads a sober life, but whose ancestors were of the self-indulging type.

Hereditary influences are rarely important factors in the causation of disease. But by inheritance certain individuals appear to possess a tendency toward this particular disease.

It may occur in persons who have eaten poor quality food for a long time. This is not surprising, because the symptoms of gout are really due to a disturbance in nutrition.

Modern methods of living, greater understanding of hygiene and food values have contributed to the decline of this ailment. Like other human disabilities, gout is dropping from the casualty list.

In gout there is an excess of uric acid in the blood. The normal output of uric acid by the body is about a gram every day.

This amount is increased or decreased, depending upon the diet. If we eat a diet containing the ingredients which form uric acid, the output is increased. In gouty individuals, the body possesses the inability to get rid of these substances.

In gout the fluids of the body are so overladen with this chemical that they must deposit it somewhere. Usually the joints are selected for such deposits. The first joint of the big toe is most frequently involved. Next come the ankles, knees, and the small joints of the hands and wrists.

The victims of gout complain of twinges of pain in the small joints of the hands or feet. Other symptoms are restlessness at night, irritability and dyspepsia. The urine is scanty in amount and low in the content of uric acid.

The attacks are quite severe and come suddenly, usually in the early morning hours. The individual is aroused from sleep by a severe pain in the joint of the big toe. The joint rapidly swells, becomes hot, hard, and shiny and is extremely sensitive to touch. Fever is present and may be as high as 103 degrees.

As the morning advances, the pain disappears, but the swelling remains. The pain may recur the following night and continue for from five to eight days.

Some persons have three to four attacks in a year; others have more. "Once gouty, always gouty," is a true statement. However, with proper care, the severity and number of attacks may be decreased.

Hygiene, avoidance of alcohol, simple yet nutritious food are essential in the treatment of gout. Outdoor life with moderate exercise, the drinking of a great deal of water are important in warding off future attacks.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

J.C. Q—How can I gain in weight?

A—Proper dieting and deep breathing are the secret. You should eat nourishing foods and have plenty of sleep and rest.

• • •

L.S. Q—What do you advise for varicose veins?

A—If the varicose veins are slight, bandaging or wearing an elastic stocking is often effective, but in most cases, surgical procedure is necessary.

R.S. Q—What causes an acid taste in my mouth all the time? I wear a plate and the roof of my mouth and gums are very red.

Scrapping a Great Theory.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The history of science is a history of comprehensive and plausible generalizations. After the generalization, decades and sometimes centuries are consumed in working out the details and consequences of the generalization or comprehensive theory. In the course of time, it may be, new phenomena of nature are discovered, unknown to the original propounder of the theory, which do not conform to the theory and can not be made to fit into it. Two avenues are then open to science: either to modify the theory in such a way as to include all the original facts embraced by the theory, and the new facts which do not conform to it; or else, to scrap the theory and replace it with an entirely new and different theory.

No cosmogony, or theory of the beginning and course of evolution of the cosmos, has proved entirely satisfactory. The most successful ever devised was that advanced by Pierre Simon Laplace, which held sway as the "nebular hypothesis" until quite recent years. The tendency among astronomers is to reject it in favor of a new theory advanced by Chamberlin and Moulton under the name of the "planetesimal hypothesis," with certain modifications known as the "tidal theory" put forward by Darwin, Jeffreys and Jeans.

What are the grounds for the rejection of the famous "nebular hypothesis," which held the field for so long, and had come to be accepted almost as "scientific gospel?" To understand the hitch, we shall set down the fundamental features of the nebular hypothesis, as outlined by Harlan True Stetson in the excellent work, "Man and the Stars." The following astronomical facts are consonant with the nebular hypothesis:

1. All the planets revolve about the sun in the same direction, counter-clockwise.

2. The outermost planet revolves the most slowly; the innermost the most rapidly, the speed increasing with decreasing distance in accordance with Kepler's third law.

3. The planes of the orbits of all the major planets lie nearly in the same general plane as that of the earth's orbit, the ecliptic.

4. The planets, with one possible exception, rotate on their axes in the same direction as they revolve about the sun, counter-clockwise.

5. The satellites of the planets, excepting the moon, are small in comparison with their primaries; and, so far as was known to Laplace, revolve about their respective planets in this same counter-clockwise direction as the planets themselves rotate and revolve.

6. The sun, a thousand times more massive than any planet, is still a hot, gaseous sphere, and rotates on its axis counter-clockwise with a period shorter than that of the innermost planets.

Moreover it is believed that the ring feature of the whole nebular hypothesis was suggested to Laplace by the ring of Saturn, a cosmic residue of a former stage in the evolutionary process by which rings, thrown off by revolving masses, become planets.

Many discoveries made since Laplace's time refute his theory. Dynamics now teaches that material scattered widely in a ring will never by its own gravitation gather itself together into a planet. Four satellites of Uranus are found to be going the wrong way to suit Laplace. One of the two inner moons of Mars is revolving about the planet faster than the planet rotates upon its axis; and this won't suit Laplace. Satellites of Jupiter and even minor planets go the wrong way around; and even the orbits of many small planets have their planes too badly tilted to suit Laplace.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Primitive Celebes.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

It is odd that a people as primitive as the Toradjas should have a talent for making agriculture profitable. These semi-savages have a knack, said to be exceeded by no other Orientals, for getting the greatest rice crop from their land.

American and European engineers have expressed surprise at the ingenuity displayed by the Toradjas in constructing irrigation systems. They bring water to the arid portions of their island through long bamboo pipe-lines and pathways cut through rocks.

Nevertheless, the Toradjas have no true commercial sense. In purchasing articles, they are guided completely by their emotions. If they want something, they will buy it despite the cost. There is no selling them an article, no matter how useful or commercially advantageous, if they do not fancy it.

Education is one of the things that have never been "sold" to his people. Nevertheless, the Toradjas have a very rich and full-spoken literature. Legends and myths of heroes, villains and spirits of the other world have been handed down through the generations since the days of antiquity.

In the same way, the Toradjas have no laws and only a very elementary form of tribal government. Yet there are 7,000 unwritten laws—7,000 taboos which all good Toradjas know and obey.

World travelers, who have visited them, say that there are few gayer or jollier people than the Toradjas. However, they can fight fiercely for the things they wish to preserve. Many times during their history they have routed the warring hosts of invaders.

The most important town on the island is Macassar. In this picturesque settlement with its polyglot population one sees the beginning of the end for the strangeness and wildness of Celebes.

No Franklinton, No Columbus.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Lucas Sullivant's name is not in the list of the founders of Columbus as the capital of Ohio. He was not a member of the group of four men who offred the site on the high banks of the Scioto opposite the town of Franklinton to the legislature in session at Zanesville in the winter of 1812. That is to say, his name is not of record in the matter, but enough is known to prove that behind the scenes he had much to do with the enterprise. If, in fact, he was not the most influential of all.

True, he had offered his town of Franklinton, but he knew that it had been definitely rejected, because of the danger of inundation. No other member of the legislature was more active in the matter of selecting this site for a new capital city than Joseph Foos. He represented Franklin county and he was a resident of Franklinton. No doubt through him Mr. Sullivant was working to bring victory out of defeat by having the higher ground lying opposite his town of Franklinton chosen as the site when Franklinton was rejected because it lay too low.

None of the four men who offered the site that was finally selected were men of large means, and none of them except Mr. Starling, who was Mr. Sullivant's brother-in-law, was in a position to command any considerable sum of money to be used in the transaction. And it is a significant fact that within a few years of the selection of this site for the capital, Mr. Starling, still a resident of Kentucky, had made a considerable investment in lands on the high banks of the Scioto opposite Franklinton, to which he referred in letters sent back home as his estate.

Starling was a good business man, and was the only one of the four founders who came out of the venture well-to-do, and he was probably able to foresee the future of the high bank lands; but it is more than likely that he took advice from Mr. Sullivant in the matter. At any rate, had there been no Franklinton there would have been no Columbus, and Mr. Sullivant is entitled to be ranked as a founder if not the founder, of Columbus.

Plan Improvements on Morrow County Highways

MT. GILEAD, March 23—Offices of H. D. Schoonover, recently appointed Morrow county resident engineer by the state highway department, have been located in the Center street building formerly occupied by the Ford garage. New office equipment has been installed.

One of the first projects to be carried out in the program of improving the state highways in the county, Mr. Schoonover announces, will be the partial elimination of the two hills at the Dalrymple farm two miles east of Mt. Gilead on the Mansfield road, Route 42.

To Let Contract

A fill of seven feet at the lowest point is contemplated by the department which has practically completed the plans. Instead of the bridge now spanning Sam's creek there a long culvert would be built as the fill would be far above the present bridge level.

The contract for this improvement may be let in April. If this is done the project will be completed in the early summer. The plans originally made included the widening of the road to the farm of T. W. Zulauf west of the bridge and east of the bridge to Shade's corners.

May Widen Road

The road is now 16 feet and may be widened to 20 or 22. The widening may not be done at this time Mr. Schoonover announced today but may be carried out at a later date.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney, of New York City, has suspended two policemen who refused to testify in a vice graft case. Why not? Is not their refusal tantamount to confession that they would either have to commit perjury or incriminate themselves?

Robert Dollar, of steamship line fame, took occasion on his eighty-seventh birthday anniversary last week to tell the secret of longevity. "Work hard, and forget your years" is the advice he offered, and while he beyond all doubt is an exceptional man, it's pretty good advice at that.

Alfred E. Smith says that prohibition is a political question. But why the need of such a declaration in this day and age? Though it should not be, has it not been made a political issue by its friends and foes alike?

The Chinese national government reports that its forces routed the red bandits in Kiangsi province, killing 1,000 of them. The trouble with Chinese reports along this line is that there is always a wide margin between the number reported killed and the number of bodies needing interment.

Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, told Dartmouth students that were Daniel Webster in the senate today he might address empty seats. Naturally. Members have been fed cheap vaudeville so long that they no longer anticipate real oratory and consequently vacate the chamber when one of their number begins to "orate."

Another ground for criticism of Jouett Shouse's insinuation that President Hoover was responsible for the selection of Senator Felix Hebert, of Rhode Island, as chairman of the senate sub-committee appointed to study unemployment insurance, is that it was utterly without foundation of fact, but it's hardly probable that Jouett could be expected to regard a little thing like that.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has pledged whatever sum is necessary up to $2,516,222 toward the construction and furnishing of "International House" at the University of Chicago as a home and club for the university's foreign students. Who can tell? Mr. Rockefeller may be doing a far greater work for world peace than many of the movements aimed at that end.

Returning to Chicago from the Pacific coast, Owner William Wrigley, Jr., "smiled a broad smile" when asked regarding the Cubs' chances the coming season. Are we to take this as a tip that this year's Chicago National team is to be a winner?

Rivalry between two volunteer fire companies in Mount Holly, New Jersey, to determine which could handle the greater number of fires, has led to the arrest of six firemen, three of whom are charged with arson and held without bail to the grand jury. It is charged that the "competition" led to fires causing property losses aggregating $50,000. Looks like carrying the competitive idea to the extreme.

Movie cowboys wearing chaps, spurs and ten-gallon hats fled in terror to places of safety when a team of ponies ran away out in Hollywood, but a panic was averted when pedestrians stopped the ponies. Still, the screen cowboys can hardly be blamed. There wasn't any director there to tell them what to do.

A Leader Is Dead.

America has heard Germany mentioned principally in terms of Herr Hitler and his Fascist army, in recent months. But it was not the mere fact of increase in legislative voting strength that made the Hitlerites prominent; it was, as well, their ability to grow more powerful in the face of opposition from the leaders of the German republic.

Dr. Herman Mueller, who died late last week at the age of fifty-four years, was a powerful leader of that opposition. Recorded in history as one of the signers of the treaty of Versailles for Germany, he had stood firm for establishment of liberal republican principles in his nation, in contrast to the school of opinion lately maneuvered into a position of power by Herr Hitler favoring a return to the old regime. On his death-bed, Dr. Mueller must have realized that today the outcome of the fight he waged is more doubtful than it ever has been in the troubled years since German soldiers trudged back home after the armistice was signed.

Dr. Mueller's passing is one more milestone in the progress to a new era, when none of the war statesmen will remain. They are passing rapidly, linked arm in arm with the generals whose names were on every tongue during the disastrous war years. A few years more and they will exist only in memory and in records.

Roosevelt and the Walker Charges.

Last Saturday's advices from New York City held out that the indications were strong that Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt would not order an investigation of the official acts of Mayor James J. Walker of that city.

The New York American was quoted as saying that it had learned on unimpeachable authority that the governor would refuse to take action for the reason that he does not consider the charges of malfeasance made against the mayor by the city affairs committee either sufficiently explicit or supported by adequate evidence to justify the taking of action.

The New York Herald Tribune represented Democratic leaders as being convinced that the governor would refuse to name a commissioner to hear the charges and printed a dispatch from Palm Springs, California, stating that the mayor feels that he has nothing to fear and that the governor will have no recourse but to vindicate him.

The New York Times, the leading independent Democratic paper of the city—and the country as well, for that matter—apparently feels, however, that the situation in the city is such that there is need for an investigation and that Mayor Walker should not attempt to sidestep investigation, but rather court it. But the Times is very careful to point out editorially that the investigation should be made by the legislature and not by the governor through an appointee; so careful, in fact, as to justify the impression that it would have Governor Roosevelt remain aloof from a situation, connection with which might impair his political prestige in the state. In fact, reading the editorial of the Times, one is inclined to feel that it would have the governor protected from the possibility of pursuit of a course of action which might embroil him with Tammany Hall, which it is manifestly inclined to hold responsible for the city's government ills rather than the mayor.

Under the circumstances, therefore, the refusal of Governor Roosevelt to order an investigation, should he refuse, will hardly occasion surprise, but no matter what his future course in the matter, he has already given New Yorkers a surprise by the peremptory manner in which he has declared that he would regard questions designed to disclose his view of the accusations against the mayor as improper and out of order and went further by making clear that his injunction extended even to speculation in dispatches sent out from Albany on the political effect of any course of action he might pursue after his examination of the charges—an attitude which is said to be wholly without precedent in a similar situation in recent times.

The position taken by the governor might not have created so great surprise had he not concluded his talk to press representatives by stating that he was the chief magistrate as well as the chief executive of the state of New York and in the former capacity had alike the power to subpoena and the power to commit offenders for contempt.

As we are not within the jurisdiction of the "chief magistrate" of New York state, we feel free to state that, while Mr. Roosevelt may be well within his rights in refusing to answer any questions directed at him and in resenting any question regarding his views or his future course in this particular matter, he is getting on pretty thin ice when he virtually threatens to cite for contempt any press representative who might speculate in his dispatches to his paper on the political effect of any course he, the governor, might determine to pursue.

The governor's course in this latter respect is not one which might be anticipated from one who has been mentioned as the possible standard-bearer of a great party in the presidential campaign of 1932 and very evidently is not adverse to that honor should it be offered him. A man making an utterance under the circumstances which may be construed as a threat, in the judgment of many will not measure up to presidential size.

Nevada's New Scheme.

Nevada's 90,981 citizens are thrilling to wide-open gambling, following the signing of a new state gambling bill last week by Governor Fred Balzar. "Now we can do lawfully what Nevada has always done under cover," Governor Balzar announced.

Descriptions of the start of the new regime say that most gambling places, notably those catering to gamblers in Reno, the state metropolis of 18,000 citizens, will stay open twenty-four hours a day, using three shifts of dealers and croupiers. The city, county and state will share the revenues.

It is misleading, of course, to assume that because Nevada legislators passed a wide-open gambling bill, and because the Nevada governor signed the bill Nevada citizens are more addicted to gambling than citizens of other states. Like the state's new forty-two day divorce law, wide-open gambling is merely a come-on to tourists and, of course, professional gamblers. Unable to pull itself out of the doldrums by enterprise, the state has resorted to a common device—cheapening itself for the sake of the money to be gained. It is fortunate, indeed, that there is only a handful of native Nevada citizens to share in the shame the state should feel.

In the social catalogue there will continue to be certain things that should be suppressed, regardless of the degree of success with which suppression is maintained. Gambling is one of the foremost of these. When Governor Balzar argues that because it is done privately it may as well be done openly, he displays a questionable sense of social balance.

The force of employes of a big Michigan piano plant has been augmented ninety per cent. since January 1 and is now working on a sixty-nine hour week, the orders received by it thus far this month being fifty per cent. greater than during any previous month's shipments. What's the answer? Is the piano taking on a new lease of life?

The New York Federation of Labor and the National Association of Manufacturers were as one at a joint legislative committee hearing in Albany in opposing insurance for the idle, the feeling being that the measure before the committee would encourage unemployment without rendering real relief to those most in need of employment and seeking it. That, it may be said, has been the result of the dole system ovr in Great Britain.

Editorial Opinion.

THE STATEVILLE REVOLT.

The prison riot in the model penitentiary at Stateville, Illinois, was occasioned, apparently, by the resentment of the convicts against certain decisions of the Illinois parole board. This is merely to say that almost any spark is sufficient to set off the vast magazine of emotional explosives which is a prison population. Though somewhat overcrowded, like almost every great prison in the country, the Stateville institution is from all accounts commodious, sanitary and up-to-date in every particular. Its occupants have little or no complaint of the meals it serves; they bear no special grudge against the warden or his subordinates; they were provided with plenty of workshops and other equipment to keep them from idleness and brooding, and also with generous recreation facilities. In short, the physical conditions of life at Stateville were in marked contrast to those which are supposed to have played such a large part in causing the riots at Auburn and Clinton in this state.

Evidently the material comfort of the prisoner is not the final answer to outbreaks, a fact of which veteran prison executives have been well aware all along. They do not minimize the importance of decent quarters and decent treatment in mitigating convict unrest, but they know from experience that as long as great companies of rebellious men are caged together and strapped to the treadmill of an artificial existence there are bound to come moments of hysterical revolt, and the bigger the prison the more dangerous the violence to be expected.

Stateville, for all its model character, is much too large an institution of its kind. It is equipped to accommodate 2,500 convicts. Penologists are almost a unit in insisting that no more than 1,000 convicts should be congregated in any one prison, that society, instead of building bigger and better bastilles, should subdivide the whole prison population into more manageable groups. The Lewisohn commission has pointed out that if this is done along scientific lines, grading the prisoners according to careful psychiatric observation and providing them with accommodations suited to their records and promise of reform, it will actually save the state money. In any event, Stateville is certainly an argument against the contrary policy.—New York Herald Tribune.

A WARDEN WHO KNOWS HIS BUSINESS.

The retort of the warden at Joliet that he would throw into a solitary cell any prisoner who signed a petition asking for an advisory council of convicts to act with the administrative officials of the penitentiary ought to have a salutary effect on the population of the Joliet and Stateville prisons.

The participants in this week's riots in those institutions, which resulted in the death of three convicts and the destruction of $500,000 worth of state property, are described as largely newcomers in crime. They are fresh from an atmosphere of coddling. Oldtimers knew what was coming to them if they were caught and sent up. Consequently they had no "grievance" against society. They didn't squawk. The new crop of criminals has been taught by people who ought to know better to look upon the penitentiary as a "country club." When it discovers that there is a slight difference, it riots and burns down prison buildings.

Convicts who have to be segregated from society because of their anti-social propensities retain behind the bars only the right to be treated as one treats a dangerous animal. All their other former rights have been forfeited. Society can do what it likes with them; can imprison them or execute them, according to what it regards as necessary to the general interest. The idea that men who have warred on society and been captured and locked up have the right to demand a new parole board whenever they disapprove of the one appointed by the state, would be amusing if the consequences of their acting upon it were not so frequently tragic.

The rioters whom Warden Hill has thrown into solitary confinement will have a chance for their young blood to cool, as well as leisure to reflect that those outside of our penitentiaries are going to rule those inside them. The disposition to destroy life and property in order to influence the treatment accorded them must be burned out of the malignants. Adherence to the firm policy laid down by Warden Hill gives the only hope of stopping further trouble and proving that society's rights are paramount and its word, with respect to convicted criminals, final.—Detroit Free Press.

Temperance and Hygiene.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

In reading the works of Charles Dickens, you are sure to run across characters described as "gouty" persons. Thackeray and other writers of his period frequently spoke of this ailment.

Gout was a penalty paid by the individual who led an inactive life, indulged in little exercise, and lived on the fat of the land. These writers gave it to the "country squire," who in his life had partaken more frequently of alcoholic beverages than of water.

With the growing practice of temperance, gout is far less common. However, the disease may afflict an individual who leads a sober life, but whose ancestors were of the self-indulging type.

Hereditary influences are rarely important factors in the causation of disease. But by inheritance certain individuals appear to possess a tendency toward this particular disease.

It may occur in persons who have eaten poor quality food for a long time. This is not surprising, because the symptoms of gout are really due to a disturbance in nutrition.

Modern methods of living, greater understanding of hygiene and food values have contributed to the decline of this ailment. Like other human disabilities, gout is dropping from the casualty list.

In gout there is an excess of uric acid in the blood. The normal output of uric acid by the body is about a gram every day.

This amount is increased or decreased, depending upon the diet. If we eat a diet containing the ingredients which form uric acid, the output is increased. In gouty individuals, the body possesses the inability to get rid of these substances.

In gout the fluids of the body are so overladen with this chemical that they must deposit it somewhere. Usually the joints are selected for such deposits. The first joint of the big toe is most frequently involved. Next come the ankles, knees, and the small joints of the hands and wrists.

The victims of gout complain of twinges of pain in the small joints of the hands or feet. Other symptoms are restlessness at night, irritability and dyspepsia. The urine is scanty in amount and low in the content of uric acid.

The attacks are quite severe and come suddenly, usually in the early morning hours. The individual is aroused from sleep by a severe pain in the joint of the big toe. The joint rapidly swells, becomes hot, hard, and shiny and is extremely sensitive to touch. Fever is present and may be as high as 103 degrees.

As the morning advances, the pain disappears, but the swelling remains. The pain may recur the following night and continue for from five to eight days.

Some persons have three to four attacks in a year; others have more. "Once gouty, always gouty," is a true statement. However, with proper care, the severity and number of attacks may be decreased.

Hygiene, avoidance of alcohol, simple yet nutritious food are essential in the treatment of gout. Outdoor life with moderate exercise, the drinking of a great deal of water are important in warding off future attacks.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

J.C. Q—How can I gain in weight?

A—Proper dieting and deep breathing are the secret. You should eat nourishing foods and have plenty of sleep and rest.

* * *

A—If the varicose veins are slight, bandaging or wearing an elastic stocking is often effective, but in most cases, surgical procedure is necessary.

R.S. Q—What causes an acid taste in my mouth all the time? I wear a plate and the roof of my mouth and gums are very red.

A—It is quite possible that your plate is at fault and causing you discomfort. It would be wise for you to consult your dentist. In the meantime, try rinsing the mouth after every meal with some alkaline solution.

N.Y. Q—What causes me to shut my mouth tightly and grind my teeth during sleeping hours?

Scrapping a Great Theory.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The history of science is a history of comprehensive and plausible generalizations. After the generalization, decades and sometimes centuries are consumed in working out the details and consequences of the generalization or comprehensive theory. In the course of time, it may be, new phenomena of nature are discovered, unknown to the original propounder of the theory, which do not conform to the theory and can not be made to fit into it. Two avenues are then open to science: either to modify the theory in such a way as to include all the original facts embraced by the theory, and the new facts which do not conform to it; or else, to scrap the theory and replace it with an entirely new and different theory.

No cosmogony, or theory of the beginning and course of evolution of the cosmos, has proved entirely satisfactory. The most successful ever devised was that advanced by Pierre Simon Laplace, which held sway as the "nebular hypothesis" until quite recent years. The tendency among astronomers is to reject it in favor of a new theory advanced by Chamberlin and Moulton under the name of the "planetesimal hypothesis," with certain modifications known as the "tidal theory" put forward by Darwin, Jeffreys and Jeans.

What are the grounds for the rejection of the famous "nebular hypothesis," which held the field for so long, and had come to be accepted almost as "scientific gospel?" To understand the hitch, we shall set down the fundamental features of the nebular hypothesis, as outlined by Harlan True Stetson in the excellent work, "Man and the Stars." The following astronomical facts are consonant with the nebular hypothesis:

1. All the planets revolve about the sun in the same direction, counter-clockwise.

2. The outermost planet revolves the most slowly; the innermost the most rapidly, the speed increasing with decreasing distance in accordance with Kepler's third law.

3. The planes of the orbits of all the major planets lie nearly in the same general plane as that of the earth's orbit, the ecliptic.

4. The planets, with one possible exception, rotate on their axes in the same direction as they revolve about the sun, counter-clockwise.

5. The satellites of the planets, excepting the moon, are small in comparison with their primaries; and, so far as was known to Laplace, revolve about their respective planets in this same counter-clockwise direction as the planets themselves rotate and revolve.

6. The sun, a thousand times more massive than any planet, is still a hot, gaseous sphere, and rotates on its axis counter-clockwise with a period shorter than that of the innermost planets.

Moreover it is believed that the ring feature of the whole nebular hypothesis was suggested to Laplace by the ring of Saturn, a cosmic residue of a former stage in the evolutionary process by which rings, thrown off by revolving masses, become planets.

Many discoveries made since Laplace's time refute his theory. Dynamics now teaches that material scattered widely in a ring will never by its own gravitation gather itself together into a planet. Four satellites of Uranus are found to be going the wrong way to suit Laplace. One of the two inner moons of Mars is revolving about the planet faster than the planet rotates upon its axis; and this won't suit Laplace. Satellites of Jupiter and even minor planets go the wrong way around; and even the orbits of many small planets have their planes too badly tilted to suit Laplace.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Primitive Celebes.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

It is odd that a people as primitive as the Toradjas should have a talent for making agriculture profitable. These semi-savages have a knack, said to be exceeded by no other Orientals, for getting the greatest rice crop from their land.

American and European engineers have expressed surprise at the ingenuity displayed by the Toradjas in constructing irrigation systems. They bring water to the arid portions of their island through long bamboo pipe-lines and pathways cut through rocks.

Nevertheless, the Toradjas have no true commercial sense. In purchasing articles, they are guided completely by their emotions. If they want something, they will buy it despite the cost. There is no selling them an article, no matter how useful or commercially advantageous, if they do not fancy it.

Education is one of the things that have never been "sold" to his people. Nevertheless, the Toradjas have a very rich and full-spoken literature. Legends and myths of heroes, villains and spirits of the other world have been handed down through the generations since the days of antiquity.

In the same way, the Toradjas have no laws and only a very elementary form of tribal government. Yet there are 7,000 unwritten laws—7,000 taboos which all good Toradjas know and obey.

World travelers, who have visited them, say that there are few gayer or jollier people than the Toradjas. However, they can fight fiercely for the things they wish to preserve. Many times during their history they have routed the warring hosts of invaders.

The most important town on the island is Macassar. In this picturesque settlement with its polyglot population one sees the beginning of the end for the strangeness and wildness of Celebes.

Similarly the Ambassador on Park avenue struggled through many weeks of emptiness before it turned the corner into a steady patronage. The famous Holland house went through a similar period of travail as did the old Fifth Avenue.

No Franklinton, No Columbus.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Lucas Sullivant's name is not in the list of the founders of Columbus as the capital of Ohio. He was not a member of the group of four men who offred the site on the high banks of the Scioto opposite the town of Franklinton to the legislature in session at Zanesville in the winter of 1812. That is to say, his name is not of record in the matter, but enough is known to prove that behind the scenes he had much to do with the enterprise. If, in fact, he was not the most influential of all.

True, he had offered his town of Franklinton, but he knew that it had been definitely rejected, because of the danger of inundation. No other member of the legislature was more active in the matter of selecting this site for a new capital city than Joseph Foos. He represented Franklin county and he was a resident of Franklinton. No doubt through him Mr. Sullivant was working to bring victory out of defeat by having the higher ground opposite his town of Franklinton chosen as the site when Franklinton was rejected because it lay too low.

None of the four men who offered the site that was finally selected were men of large means, and none of them except Mr. Starling who was Mr. Sullivant's brother-in-law, was in a position to command any considerable sum of money to be used in the transaction. And it is a significant fact that within a few years of the selection of this site for the capital, Mr. Starling, still a resident of Kentucky, had made a considerable investment in lands on the high banks of the Scioto opposite Franklinton, which he referred in letters sent back home as his estate.

Starling was a good business man, and was the only one of the four founders who came out of the venture well-to-do, and he was probably able to foresee the future of the high bank lands; but it is more than likely that he took advice from Mr. Sullivant in the matter. At any rate, had there been no Franklinton there would have been no Columbus, and Mr. Sullivant is entitled to be ranked as a founder, if not the founder, of Columbus.

Federal Bureau Releases Figures on Bucyrus Business

RETAIL STORES NUMBER 203

Food Sales Lead List with Totals Reaching $1,761,014.

Retail business in Bucyrus in excess of $6,000,000 for 1929 is shown by federal census bureau in the release today of the returns from the 1930 distribution census now being compiled by the United States Department of Commerce.

The bureau reports 203 retail stores with a total annual business of $6,058,743, a yearly pay roll of $1,761,014, and full-time employment of 1,243 men and women. The report number of employes does not include those working part time, although the pay roll of part time employes is included in the sales and wages. Merchandise in stock for sale at the end of 1929 shows a cost value of $1,015,329.

203 Stores

The total of 203 stores include 172 single-store independents, 5 units of 2-store multiples, and 2 units of 3-store multiples. There are also 3 units of local chains, 5 units of sectional chains, and 15 units of national chains. Sales of these three types of chain organizations aggregate $1,136,412, or 18 per cent of the total retail business, while sales of the single-store independents amount to $4,649,960, or 75 per cent. These figures are based upon reports received in 1930 covering the year 1929.

The food group takes the lead in this report, with the automotive group second and the general merchandise group third in order of sales.

32 Groceries

Food stores total 53 and report sales of $1,761,014, or 28 per cent of the total retail business. Of this number 32 are grocery stores with sales of $1,117,050 and 6 are meat markets with sales of $249,730. Fresh-meat departments are operated in 12 of the grocery stores and several of the meat markets have developed a side line of groceries. Many bakeries which manufacture their own products are included in the census of manufacturers and do not appear in this report.

The automotive group, with 38 establishments, does a business of $1,483,365, or 24 per cent of the total retail business. Sales in 10 motor-vehicle establishments amount to $1,135,842, and sales in six accessory, tire, and battery stores to $55,902. A total of 14 filling stations is reported with aggregate sales of $247,218 in gas, oil, tires, and other accessories. This merchandise is also sold in 8 garages whose total business of $14,463, includes receipts from repairs and storage as well as from sales.

Full Time Work

The general merchandise group, which includes department stores, general stores, and variety, 5-and-10, and to-a-dollar stores, reports sales of $774,676 in nine stores, employs the full-time services of 91 men and women, and pays $90,195 annually in salaries and wages. The three department stores report sales of $436,922 while the three general stores, and three variety, 5-and-10, and to-a-dollar stores report sales of $337,754. Inventory for the group as of the end of the reporting year totals $172,330.

The apparel group of 19 stores reports a business of $516,008, employs 43 full-time people, and pays $57,508 in salaries and wages annually. This group consists of six men's stores, two women's specialty shops, one clothing store, five millinery shops, four shoe stores, and one other apparel and accessory shop.

The lumber and building group, with 18 stores and yards, reports 53 full-time employes and a total retail business of $459,108. This group includes lumberyards and hardware, electrical, heating and plumbing, and paint and glass stores. Planing mills and similar establishments which manufacture building materials are included in the census of Manufacturers and do not appear in this report.

16 Restaurants

The 16 restaurants and other eating places in Bucyrus employ 55 full-time people and do a business of $228,438. This volume of business is exclusive of meals served in dining rooms operated by hotels and boarding houses, and of lunches served in drug stores. The total pay roll of the 16 restaurants and eating places is $42,703.

Other large business classifications shown in detail in this report are coal and wood yards, drug stores, furniture stores, and cigar stores.

This report is a comprehensive picture of the retail business in Bucyrus, and is part of the first basic nation-wide census of distribution now being compiled by the Bureau of the Census.

Plan Improvements on Morrow County Highways

MT. GILEAD, March 23—Offices of H. D. Schoonover, recently appointed Morrow county resident engineer by the state highway department, have been located in the Center street building formerly occupied by the Ford garage. New office equipment has been installed.

One of the first projects to be carried out in the program of improving the state highways in the county, Mr. Schoonover announces, will be the partial elimination of the two hills at the Dalrymple farm two miles east of Mt. Gilead on the Mansfield road, Route 42.

To Let Contract

A fill of seven feet at the lowest point is contemplated by the department which has practically completed the plans. Instead of the bridge now spanning Sam's creek there a long culvert would be built as the fill would be far above the present bridge level.

The contract for this improvement may be let in April. If this is done the project will be completed in the early summer. The plans originally made included the widening of the road to the farm of T. W. Zulauf west of the bridge and east of the bridge to Shade's corners.

May Widen Road

The road is now 16 feet and may be widened to 20 or 22. The widening may not be done at this time Mr. Schoonover announced today but may be carried out at a later date.
